KAISER ADMITS HE WENT OVER HEADS OF NAVY

Note to President Brought Carrier Contract After Admirals Vetoed It.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 29—Henry J. Kaiser testified today that he sent a brief note to the late President Roosevelt and got a wartime contract to build small aircraft carriers after top Navy officials previously had rejected his offer.

The wartime industrialist told the senate war investigating committee of this incident after saying "I can't recollect" when asked whether he went to the White House in connection with contracts he secured to build cargo-carrying warplanes.

The committee is seeking facts regarding some $40,000,000 worth of airplane contracts awarded to Kaiser and Howard Hughes, aircraft designer and film producer.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) questioned Kaiser on this.

On the "baby" flattops—small aircraft carriers—Kaiser told this story:

He talked with the late Marvin McIntyre, secretary to the late President Roosevelt, about building the aircraft carriers.

Consulted McIntyre

McIntyre was "very available" and when the Navy rejected Kaiser's plans "by a vote of 16 to nothing" he consulted McIntyre.

"At the time I had seen the President once once," Kaiser went on. "I went in to see Mac."

McIntyre told him, Kaiser said, that if Kaiser would "write a little letter of about four paragraphs" that McIntyre would "lay it on the Chief's desk."

Kaiser said the next day he received a call from Admiral Emory S. Land, then directing ship construction.

"Admiral Land said 'What the Hell have you been doing?'" Kaiser continued.

Kaiser said the letter to President Roosevelt caused top navy officials to "reverse" themselves.

Gets Order

"I got an order for 100 air carriers," he said. "All hell broke loose. They did not want aircraft carriers. They wanted destroyers. I told them I could not build destroyers. Finally they cancelled orders for 50."

Kaiser said the Navy did not want to call his ships "aircraft carriers" and at first "wanted to give them to the British" but finally "turned the heat of hell on us to produce more of them."

"The Navy reversed itself," he continued. "It was wonderful. Admiral King came in and said he wanted to help."

Admiral Ernest King was chief of naval operations and commander in chief of the Navy at the time.

At the outset of the hearing, Kaiser protested there has been a "smear campaign" against him.

"I have never in my entire history had such a smear campaign directed against me," the west coast industrialist told a senate war investigating subcommittee as he prepared to hear his story of his $8,000,000 wartime cargo plane contract.

Get Wholesale Credit

The baby aircraft carriers have been credited by the Navy with playing a major part in winning the war. Kaiser swung into the story of them as Ferguson pressed a line of questions aimed at uncovering whether Mr. Roosevelt had a hand in award of the plane contracts to Kaiser and Hughes.

Under this questioning, Kaiser said "it would appear" that the president "left a note" (presumably to Navy officials) about the fliers.

But he said he knew of no such note about the "flying boat" airplanes.

Kaiser told the committee that Hughes conceived the idea for a 200-ton cargo plane in the spring of 1942.

He said he discussed it with Hughes and Donald Douglas and Douglas was "tremendously enthusiastic."

He went on to contend that Hughes over Loening, former aviation consultant to WPB Chief Donald Nelson, "double-crossed" him on the flying boat proposal.

Quotes Employes

He said Loening stopped to see him in San Francisco a few days before a meeting of a WPB committee in Los Angeles in August, 1942. He put into the record a number of affidavits from his employes purporting to show that Loening then was enthusiastic about the idea.

"When did you have these affidavits prepared?" Ferguson asked.

"At the time I got the double cross," Kaiser said.

About the "double cross," Kaiser related that Loening made an appointment to meet him in Los Angeles several days later.

Grand Jury Resumes Vote Fraud Inquiry

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, July 29—A federal grand jury prepared to resume its investigation today of alleged vote frauds in the 1946 primary election in Kansas City.

Resumption of the grand jury's investigation followed an announcement in Washington by Attorney General Tom Clark that he had assigned two special assistants to work with the jury.

TRUMAN FLIES HOME AFTER BURIAL RITES

By The Associated Press

GRANDVIEW, Mo., July 29—Tired and a little drawn, President Truman departed for the White House today, leaving his mother in a flower-laden grave shaded by trees from the hot Missouri sun.

The presidential plane took-off at 10:43 a. m. for Washington, where a pile of legislation, crowded through in the closing days of congress awaited Mr. Truman's consideration.

Mrs. Martha Ellen Truman, 94, who said her son could "do anything just a little better than anyone else," was buried yesterday in Forest Hill cemetery at Kansas City, beside the unmarked grave of the President's father, John A. Truman.

The President and his family sat in the kitchen of her little house in Grandview and others filled the dining room and parlor, while Rev. Welbern Bowman, a near neighbor, read a simple, 20-minute funeral service. There was no eulogy because, he said, "she would not have wanted a eulogy."

The President admitted to friends that he was "tired," and those who saw him while the last rites were recited over the casket said that tense facial lines "really showed his grief."

Only 37 persons, kin to the Trumans with few exceptions, were present as the final words of comfort were spoken—"The Lord is My Shepherd," and "The Days of our Years are Three Score Years and ten."

Martha Truman's years, far beyond that span, had seen civil warfare on the Missouri-Kansas border when she was 10 years old. The final resting place of the peppery little southern sympathizer was near a monument to Confederate army dead, topped by a soldier facing north.

The modest interment would have suited her too, friends said, because there was no "fuss and feathers." Sixteen cars, including the black hearse bearing the flower laden casket, made up the funeral cortege. The graveside ceremonies were brief, three or four minutes in all. The cemetery was closed to non-participants.

Thirty floral pieces were banked beside the tree-shaded grave though the Trumans asked that no flowers be sent. One—an upright wreath of roses and gladiolas—bore a ribbon inscribed "members of the United States senate."

SOFT DRINKS SPURT SEEN

End of Sugar Rationing Believed Forerunner of Heavy Production.

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, July 29—Government officials agreed today that the sudden end of industrial sugar rationing would mean skyrocketing production of "big name" bottled soft drinks and that most housewives would feel no sugar pinch.

The "ins" and "outs" of sugar officialdom disagreed on one point, however. The men in charge of remaining sugar controls said no shortages were in the offing, anywhere. The "outs"—officials of the agriculture department's defunct sugar rationing administration — predicted that temporary shortages would develop in scattered area remote from refineries.

Funds Lacked

The sugar rationing administration collapsed yesterday for lack of funds. As a result, soft drink bottlers, ice cream manufacturers, candy makers, processors and bakeries were free today to buy all the sugar they want—as long as they use it up. Inventories will be limited until March, 1948, and prices controlled until Oct. 31, 1947.

A branch of the department's production and marketing administration will be in charge of these last two controls.

"Premature" Move

An official of the defunct agency said it was "premature" to abandon rationing at the height of the soft drink season. Temporary shortages will develop in small cities and rural areas far from refineries, he said, when bottlers rush to increase production.

He said the agency had planned to terminate rationing several

WOOLEN FABRICS DUE FOR PRICE INCREASE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 29—Prices of woolen fabrics are expected to be up as much as 10 per cent when mills open their spring lines within the next two weeks, trade sources said today.

One clothing manufacturer said high priced woolen goods would be as much as 35 cents a yard over the present level. He estimated increases on all types at 15 to 35 cents a yard.

An American Woolen Co. spokesman said that company would not announce its prices on woolens until next week, but added that worsted prices would be up.

Among factors contributing to the upward trend, trade sources said, were an army contract for 12,000,000 yards, export shipments, expected wage increases in woolen mills and higher wool tops prices.

Shoe Prices Sure To Go Higher, Executive Says

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 29—Maxwell Jarman, chairman of General Shoe Corp., said today that shoe prices, forced steadily upward by skyrocketing raw materials costs, are certain to go higher.

Raw material matters have gone out of control and retail prices cannot escape reflecting a part of that situation, he asserted, adding that every conceivable effort has been made to hold down the retail level.

He said shoe prices have gone up 20 per cent during 1946 in the face of an 80 per cent rise in the prices of hides and skins.

WOMAN PUT IN COURT'S CARE

Mother of Three, Held in Robbery Investigation, Freed from Jail.

A 22-year-old Marion woman who was arrested Friday night by city police and held as a suspect in the holdup robbery of a restaurant at Elyria was turned over to county juvenile court officials yesterday afternoon.

After talking with Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith, acting as juvenile judge, the young woman was placed in custody of the Marion county probation officer, Mrs. Ella Thibaut, who investigated the home conditions of the woman's three children, ranging in age from three to five years.

After investigating the children, who were taken by the maternal grandparents when the woman was arrested, Mrs. Thibaut released the woman in the custody of her parents.

The young woman was taken into custody a few minutes after James Furniss, 26, and Wilbur Gruver, 28, of Barks road and Cheney avenue were arrested as suspects of the armed robbery at an Elyria restaurant and also in connection with the Western Union holdup here last Tuesday.

Trio Seen In Car

Two men and a woman were reported seen in a car leaving the scene of the holdup at Elyria Friday morning. The suspects later admitted being there when Capt. E. C. Mackan questioned them Saturday afternoon at police station.

After officials checked the license number of the car which had been reported, Furniss was arrested at a Davids street barber shop. Gruver at the Cheney avenue residence. The woman at a downtown grill where she had just reported for work as night waitress.

In signed statements taken Saturday at police station Furniss and Gruver confessed to the Western Union holdup here last Tuesday and the Elyria holdup Friday morning.

One Identified

Furniss was identified as the Western Union robber here and also by a victim of the Lima Western Union robbery June 28. He also confessed to two other robberies, one at a Lima hotel, the other at a filling station at Norwalk. He admitted stealing a total of over $550 and said Gruver was his accomplice on just two jobs, the last two reported. The other robberies he did alone.

Furniss and Gruver, charged with armed robbery in connection with the Western Union holdup here, entered pleas of not guilty, waived examination and were bound over to grand jury under $5,000 bond yesterday. They were committed to county jail to await grand jury hearings.

When talking with Judge Smith before being released yesterday the young woman said she had intended to marry Furniss and had been associating with him for some time. When asked her reasons for marrying him, she said she thought she "could straighten him out." Judge Smith said she appeared to be under a strain.

In previous questionings she admitted being in the car at Elyria and also admitted living at the Marion address with Furniss, Gruver and another woman for the past month.

The three children had been at the address until the woman's parents took them following her arrest.

She filed for a divorce some time ago from her present husband, common pleas court records show, and the action is still pending.

No charges were filed against the woman and police said she apparently has no previous record.

Pedestrian Reports Attack and Robbery

Faye Kuhn Jr. of 528 North State street reported to police at 11:50 o'clock last night that he had been attacked a short time before by two men and robbed of $34 cash. He was walking along the street at the time.

He told police he had been thrown to the ground by two men while walking just South of Quarry street on the east side of North State street. He said he was kicked and his billfold taken from his pocket and emptied. He described one of the men as being tall and slender, the other was considerably smaller in size. The two men ran east in the alley just north of Quarry street, he told police.

Taft Calls for Open Discussion Of Domestic and Foreign Issues

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 29—Senator Taft of Ohio called today for a "frank discussion" by his fellow Republicans of domestic and foreign issues:

The Ohio senator, scheduled to receive his state's "favorite son" endorsement for the G.O.P. presidential nomination at Columbus Thursday, said he plans to bear down during his western trip in September on issues likely to arise before the next session of congress.

"I plan to talk about the issues before the country," including the Marshall plan for economic aid for Europe," Taft told a reporter.

"Before congress meets again (in January), I think all of these matters should be freely discussed throughout the country, particularly by Republicans."

Seen as Challenge

Although they declined to link it in any way to any other potential presidential candidate, his statement was interpreted immediately as a challenge to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York to speak out.

On his own western trip Dewey remained silent on major political developments. He declined to discuss his views on the new Taft-Hartley labor act and refused to comment on the Marshall plan after Secretary of State Marshall explained it to the governors conference at Salt Lake City.

Friends said Taft hopes to emphasize on a tour of California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and possibly Wyoming that he is willing to state his stand on every domestic and international issue of importance.

Taft will begin what he regards as a political testing tour with an appearance before the American Bar association convention in Santa Cruz, Sept. 12 as one of a panel discussing the Taft-Hartley act.

To Speak at L. A.

He will swing into political meetings with an address before the California Young Republicans clubs at Los Angeles on Sept. 16.

In quick succession he has scheduled talks Sept. 19 before the Commonwealth club at San Francisco; Sept. 20 at Reno; Sept. 24 before the Associated Service clubs of Seattle and Sept. 25 before Tacoma's World Affairs council.

A day later, Taft will address the Republican clubs of Oregon at Gearhart, going on to Boise, Idaho, the following day. The senator said he has been invited to stop in Wyoming on his way back to Ohio.

Not connected with this tour is a date for Taft to address the Illinois state Chamber of Commerce at Chicago, Oct. 9.

Although Taft intends to maintain until after the western tour that he is not an announced presidential candidate, scheduled functions at Columbus Thursday will leave little room for doubt.

Bricker To Bow Out

As plans now stand, Senator John W. Bricker will announce before the Ohio state Republican committee meets that he is supporting Taft as the state's favorite son.

The state committee promptly will endorse Taft and, at a night banquet speech, the latter will say that he is highly honored but wants to await the results of his western survey before he decides finally.

Nevertheless, state committee representatives are expected to get busy picking Taft delegates to run in next year's primary. Few expect any major opposition to them, although there have been some reports that former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, an announced presidential candidate, may test his strength in northern Ohio where Taft is reported weakest.

1,000 Republicans Plan To Attend Rally

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 29—Nearly 1,000 party members have reserved banquet tickets for the Ohio Republican rally Thursday when the state central and executive committee is expected to endorse Senator Robert A. Taft for the presidential nomination.

State Republican Chairman Fred H. Johnson indicated a proposal to endorse Taft as Ohio's favorite son candidate would get unanimous approval at a committee meeting preceding the rally.

Taft and Sen. John W. Bricker will share the speaking platform during the banquet. Taft's speech will be broadcast over a 280-station network from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m., EST. He is expected, however, to withhold a formal candidacy announcement until fall.

Other action endorsing Taft may come from the Young Republican clubs of Ohio, the Ohio Federation of Republican Women's clubs and the War Veterans Republican clubs of Ohio.

British Hang 3 Terrorists

Defy Underground Threat To Execute 2 Kidnaped Soldiers in Reprisal.

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM, July 29 — The British hanged three Jews today in defiance of a Jewish underground threat to retaliate with the execution of two British hostages and "bathe the Holy Land with blood."

A British military announcement said Meir Nakar, Yacoub Weiss and Absalom Habib were put to death between 4 and 5 a. m. in Acre prison on Palestine's north coast for their part in the May 4 break there, in which 251 prisoners were freed and 16 persons were killed.

A Jewish underground source said last night that Irgun Zvai Leumi, to which the three belonged, had tried British sergeants Clifford Martin and Mervin Paice and condemned them to death for being members of a force "illegally occupying Palestine" and "conspiring to oppress the rightful citizens of Palestine." The sergeants were kidnapped July 12 at Netanya.

This source said that, while Irgun Commander-in-Chief Menachem Beigin had confirmed their sentences, it was unlikely they would be executed "until the final disposition of the case of our three soldiers." The judges, he reported, were one-time Polish lawyers.

Irgun had held Martin and Paice since their kidnapping and British soldiers and police searched eight Jewish vicinities near Tel Aviv last night in an evident effort to liberate them.

Among Palestine executions of recent years, today's hanging was exceeded only by that of last

MICHIGAN TOP G.O.P. CHIEFS MEET DEWEY

By The Associated Press

OWOSSO, Mich., July 29—The upper crust of Michigan's Republican leadership comes to Owosso today for a closed-door huddle with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, during which the New Yorker hopes to get a decisive nod as the state's No. 2 choice for the G.O.P. presidential nomination.

Already State Chairman John A. Wagner has said that Michigan's senior senator, Arthur H. Vandenberg, is the favorite son in this state and that Dewey, a native of Owosso, is second.

Wagner is among the group scheduled to have lunch and talk with the governor. Arthur E. Summerfield, national committeeman from Michigan, arranged the meeting and was expected to head the visiting contingent, which includes Mrs. Dudley C. Hay, national committeewoman.

The meeting is a ticklish one from Dewey's standpoint. He wants to get it across that he is fully in accord with the prevailing Republican sentiment in Michigan that Vandenberg rightfully deserves the state's 41 delegate votes at the national convention in Philadelphia next June.

But he also seeks to clinch the support of the delegation in the event Vandenberg is not placed in nomination or fails to muster sufficient strength to make him a serious contender.

Nov. 18 Tipped as Date For Princess' Wedding

By The United Press

LONDON, July 29—Princess Elizabeth and Lieut Philip Mountbatten will be married in Westminster Abbey Nov. 18, it was said today by excellent palace sources.

There will be no official announcement of date until after the meeting of the privy council on Friday but Nov. 18 was said to have been suggested by King George himself.

October had been suggested previously as a wedding date because the weather is usually mild and would be favorable for big outdoor celebrations. However, those in charge of arrangements felt they need another month to handle them comfortably.

HUGHES' WITNESS. Grover Loening, veteran plane designer, predicted the "beaching" this winter of the $18,000,000 Hughes-Kaiser flying boat, built on orders from Donald M. STEEL PRICES HUDDLE BEGINS

Top Company Executives Survey Economic Outlook Before Setting Policy.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 29—U. S. Steel Corp. directors met today in a spotlight of publicity and conjecture to canvass second quarter earnings and to decide what to do about raising steel prices.

Before them were announcements of many of their leading competitors of price hikes of from $5 to $10 a ton on steel products over the weekend.

If the new price schedules become industry wide, consumers estimated they would pay a total of $300,000,000 more a year for products going into a large assortment of manufactured items ranging from automobiles to nails.

Higher Prices Necessary

Steel producers said higher prices were necessary to meet mounting production costs.

They listed steel wage hikes, effective in April, as costing about $240,000,000; an increase of about $10 a ton in scrap steel as adding $153,000,000 more; freight rate boosts another $75,000,000; and the latest coal wage increase about $90,000,000.

Before U. S. Steel directors met, Republic Steel Corp. announced another price rise—this time $5 to $10 a ton on steel plates, wire and wire products. Republic, the third largest producer, had already marked up by $3 to $8 a

GRAIN FUTURES DIP ON CHICAGO MARKET

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 29—Grain futures broke sharply on the board of trade today, wheat declining as much as 5 cents a bushel during the morning session. Corn was off around 3 cents but oats showed some resistance to general selling.

The government reduced its wheat buying price by one cent at Kansas City. This, combined with favorable weather for expansion of harvesting operations, to start a selling wave.

Some of the selling in oats and corn reflected a government announcement that no export allocations of these grains were made for September.

Toward mid-session a rally started and at 11 a. m. wheat was 3½ cents to 4 cents lower than the previous close, September $2.27¼. Corn was 2 to 2¼ lower, September $2.04⅝, and oats were 1⅝ to 1⅞ lower, September 89½-⅝.

INCREASE NOW 55 PER CENT

Bids on Silver St. Project Reveal Ascent Over Original Estimates.

Rapidly spiraling costs of labor and building materials since the city board of education set up its proposed school improvement program more than a year ago, today posed a serious problem for school officials.

The difficulty was brought to a head over the weekend when school officials began a detailed study of bids submitted by contractors for the remodeling of the Silver Street elementary building.

Originally estimated to cost $165,000, school officials have found that on the basis of bids submitted the lowest possible cost of the work $256,448, an increase of nearly 55 per cent over the amount anticipated.

How to carry on the proposed building program in the immediate future in the face of these increased costs is the problem facing the board of education and other school officials.

For the entire building program the school board has available $2,100,000 from a bond issue voted in May, 1946. This was the amount estimated to be needed when the program was drafted in the winter months of 1945 and 1946, preparatory to submitting the issue to the voters.

Estimate Now $3,300,000

On the basis of the Silver Street increase, schools official now see a total cost of approximately $3,300,000.

The program for which the bond issue was voted included the following projects:

A new junior-senior high school at the athletic field site to cost $1,350,000.

A new junior high school on North State street to cost $449,000.

Remodeling of the Silver Street building at a cost of $165,000.

Community room at Olney Avenue school to cost $30,000.

Community room and extensive remodeling of the Oak Street school at a cost of $75,000.

Lunch room at Edison Junior High school to cost $5,000.

Reconditioning including new lighting equipment in practically all grade schools at a cost of $26,000.

Remodeling of Harding High school as a vocational shop school at a cost of $30,000.

Percentage of Increase

On the basis of increased costs shown in the Silver Street bids these projects now would cost an additional 55 per cent with the new junior-senior high school going to slightly more than $2,000,000 and the junior high school going to approximately $700,000. Other projects would increase in like proportion.

The board of education continued consideration of the problem at a meeting in the school administration building yesterday afternoon. No decision on the future course was reached.

However, the board did determine to lay the matter before the Civic Planning association, which was instrumental in sponsoring the campaign for the bond issue and which also did considerable research work in arriving at a basis for the original program.

General Problem

School officials pointed out today that the problem is not peculiar to Marion alone. Other school systems are faced with the same difficulties.

They said they understood Mansfield, which voted a bond issue of approximately $2,000,000 about two years ago, had determined to go ahead with its program and do what it could with the money available.

Other school systems in the state, however, are taking a different course, confining their work to what is necessary to take care of increased school population. Among these are Cleveland, Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus and numerous smaller cities. A large number of Ohio cities voted bond issues following the close of the war to provide long needed school improvements.

School officials today saw one ray of hope, although faint, in reports that industry is laying up a backlog of some types of building materials. If increased supply brings a lowering of costs, they see a chance of carrying through with the program.

15 KILLED AS SHIP EXPLODES

422 Injured as Norwegian Freighter Blows Up in French Port.

By The Associated Press

BREST, FRANCE, July 29—Officials reported 15 dead and at least 422 injured in this port today from the explosion and fire that wrecked the nitrate-laden Norwegian freighter Ocean Liberty yesterday.

Four of the injured died this morning, the French ministry of marine said. Badly injured and hospitalized at nearby Landerneau were 46 others, five of whom doctors termed critical. In addition, Ponchalet hospital reported it had treated 376 for cuts and bruises inflicted by flying debris.

Hundreds more were severely shaken when the nitrate went off with a shattering blast that smashed in building fronts along the sea front, set off an explosion in the city's gas system, fired a gasoline storage tank and demolished lines of communication.

Dead Are Workers

All those killed were dock workers or seamen. The crew had been taken off the ship before the explosion, but her captain was reported killed by flying debris.

(Paris newspapers had estimated the toll of dead as high as 23).

The explosion occurred as the American-built Liberty ship was being towed out to the roadstead after an unsuccessful five-hour battle to extinguish a fire discovered in her hold as she lay alongside a dock waiting to discharge her cargo.

The blast rocked the entire city, many of whose residents had fled to the hills in response to warnings.

(Reports from Falmouth, Eng., 120 miles from Brest, said a fairly sharp earth tremor was felt there yesterday which shook doors and windows, and the British Press association speculated that the Brest explosion might have been responsible.)

Fires started by the explosion leveled flimsy dockside buildings and spread to a gas plant, an oil depot, a hospital and to the business district. Electric service and communications were blacked out.

PACKARD'S NEW SUPER-EIGHT CONVERTIBLE

A new Packard convertible, the company's first post-war of this model, has gone on display at the Smith Motor Sales, at 131 North Prospect street. It is a super-eight, brought out to supplement the Packard Clipper line.

Among many features of the new car, are "flush-contour styling—a fresh approach in automotive design, with no bumps or protrusions, and a new 145-horsepower engine.

The convertible has no rear fenders, the body itself extending over the wheels. The massive bumpers, whose long arms reach almost from wheel-opening to wheel-opening, are "integral parts of the car, instead of just being hung on," Christopher said. Part of the cooling air enters through the front bumper, which also serves as a section of the grille.

The new straight-eight engine, which develops nearly one-half horsepower per cubic inch displacement, is the first to be developed by Packard since World War II, when the company built 13,000 PT-Boat powerplants and 57,000 aircraft engines.

Other features of the super-eight convertible include an instrument panel with keys that push for both "on" and "off." The keys stay in constant alignment along a chrome strip at the bottom of the panel. The dials are softly illuminated by "black light," which eliminates nighttime glare and reflections.

The airplane-type steering wheel is made of a steel core covered by tough plastic, with chrome inserts.

All four windows move up or down at the touch of a button. Each passenger has an individual control, but the driver can operate all four windows from a master set of buttons at his left. The entire top rail of the body is made of stainless steel to prevent rust.

COLUMBUS, O., July 29—The maimed veterans of World War II now may parking in loading zones, alleys and "no parking" zones without fear of getting a traffic ticket.

Special parking privileges for those veterans eligible to receive free automobiles under federal law were established yesterday.

But, even this doesn't entitle anyone to double park, police warned.

The state adjutant for the AMVETS, Don Ashworth, declared Columbus was the first city in the United States to grant such special parking privilege, but said similar programs are under way throughout the nation.

THE GASOLINE PINCH IS NOT SO BIG
but that your care will cure it!

In a "nutshell":

★ Demand goes up . . . up . . . up.

★ Sohio and the oil industry have expanded and invented, invented and expanded, under the spur of competition.

★ Great progress has been made, but with postwar shortages of steel and equipment, transportation facilities could not be expanded fast enough to keep pace.

★ No need to be panicky.

★ Go on your vacation, but go carefully and not too far.

★ Keep your gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil use from going over what it was last year.

In fairness to all of our customers and with the greatest regret, Sohio has begun distributing gasoline and kerosene to Sohio dealers, service stations and distributors on a basis not to exceed their 1946 usage. We believe that this temporary system will distribute the supply of our products fairly and evenly, which is one of our greatest concerns.

How much of a reduction does this mean?

Our company's budgets and forecasts of its own gasoline sales indicated there would be an increase in our sales for the next few months of about 8% over sales in 1946. The prospective demand for the industry as a whole might be slightly above or below that figure. Non-essential driving consumption, however, ought to be reduced by more than that figure to leave room for consumption by the necessary transportation, such as that of doctors, busses, and essential deliveries. Over-all, our total sales must be held at a point not to exceed last year.

Our dealers and distributors, as independent business men, will determine for themselves how they will handle their available supplies. The company believes that, likewise, its own service stations will, themselves, be the best judges in dealing fairly with their customers.

How long will this situation last?

Frankly, we do not know. We are laying our plans, however, on the expectation that additional oil transportation facilities will afford the needed relief by next spring.

Here is the pinch

The present shortage is essentially due not to the increase in gasoline consumption, but to the enormous increase in the consumption of heating oils.

During the past winter and spring the use of home heating oils more than doubled the use in the last year before the war, 1941, and were approximately ⅓ third over 1946.

Farmers are using over 50% more petroleum fuels than in 1941.

The railroads in the first quarter of this year compared to 1941 have increased their use of diesel fuels more than one hundred times.

Today more airplanes fly the skies than ever before.

All this means that far more crude oil has been produced, transported, and run through the refineries than was necessary even during the war.

Refinery crude oil runs in the industry at the present time are averaging 5,100,000 barrels per day, which is 9% over the all-time high in the peak fighting year of 1945. These runs of today are 31% above the average daily refinery crude oil runs of 1941.

In 1941 Sohio's refinery crude oil runs averaged 70,500 barrels per day; and in 1945, 74,400. For the first 6 months of 1947, moreover, Sohio's refinery crude oil runs averaged 94,300 barrels per day, which is an increase of 27% over 1945 and an increase of 34% over 1941.

This expansion in refinery capacity was effected with very little new equipment since such equipment due to war and postwar shortages was scarcely available. It was accomplished fundamentally by ingenuity and improvisation. We could still increase our refinery runs by about 10% without additional refining equipment if we could get the crude oil to our refineries.

We think our case is fairly typical of the industry in the Middle West.

Here, then, is the pinch.

The shortage is not a shortage of crude oil. Today America has more proven crude oil reserves under ground than ever before. The trouble is transportation. It is a problem of getting additional transportation capacity from the oil fields to the refineries. This situation it especially acute in the middle west and east central states which rely primarily upon pipe lines and cannot be reached by tankers.

What is being done about it?

Everyone is familiar with the shortage of steel and equipment and the difficulties in construction that have existed all during the war and postwar period to date. In spite of these shortages, we believe that the oil industry has made a remarkable record in increasing its production of crude oil and in increasing the available volumes of finished products.

Hundreds of miles of new pipe lines have already been built.

Additional pipe lines are now under construction which it is believed will materially help the situation by next spring. Whether it will cure it will depend on how much of an increase in consumptive demand develops next year. The demands upon the oil industry for heat, in addition to internal combustion, are placing an additional burden on the industry which no one could foresee.

As to home heating

Sohio has started to fill all its customers' home fuel oil tanks to their brim. This is for the purpose of giving us more storage facilities for the accumulation of a supply of heating oils for the winter. Customer cooperation this summer in filling up their fuel oil tanks is important.

And already as a safeguard to the home heating of present customers, Sohio has ceased taking on new heating oil commitments at this time.

So:

We earnestly bespeak our customers' cooperation with their favorite Standard Oil dealer, service station or distributor.

We know that the oil industry as a whole is doing its best. Oil companies constantly vie in improving their techniques in oil production, transportation, refining and selling. It is this rivalry more than anything else that has given America bigger oil supplies and better oil products at the lowest prices in the world. You can count on it that that rivalry in the oil business urges it forward to the earliest possible termination of this temporary problem.

We are sure of your help.

Bevin's Talk, Ruhr Food Bonus Tip Importance of King Coal

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The vital part which coal production is playing in the European economic crisis, and consequently in the turbulent political situation, was well emphasized by two developments during the week-end—one in England and the other in Germany.

British Foreign Minister Bevin in an impassioned appeal to his country's workers in general, and to the coal miners in particular, warned that they must produce more or risk the fall of the Socialist government and weakening of Britain's position in world affairs. Increased production, he said, would enable the country to give foreign credits which would help diplomacy.

DewittMackenzie

He was addressing thousands of miners whose production is the key to England's economic recovery.

"My God, working men and women," he cried, "this is the first labor (Socialist) government you have got. Don't let it fail, for the sake of generations to come. Your labor government is carrying on in foreign affairs without the tools to do the job and it must be helped out."

Strong, Unusual Language

That's strong and most unusual language to come from a cabinet minister, but it doesn't exaggerate the dangers of the situation in which the government finds itself as it struggles with England's first all-out experiment in socialism. The government maintains that it has been caught in a rush of war-born circumstances which it hasn't been able to control thus far, while Bevin's predecessor in the foreign office, Conservative Anthony Eden, said in an address Saturday that Labor has divided the nation when a united effort is needed.

Be that as may, British Conservatives are saying that unless production is increased the people will suffer hardships which will impel them to turn out the Socialist government and elect new leaders. Bevin noted in his speech that such talk was going the rounds.

The German incident related to the Ruhr hard-coal production upon which the economic recovery of the continent depends so heavily. The output is so far below requirements that the situation is critical. In an effort to remedy this, the British and American occupation authorities have devised a plan which is calculated to give the miners an incentive for digging more coal.

Food Bonus Proposed

This is a bonus in food—a matter of moment among people who have been going on short rations. Folk who are hungry think with their bellies.

The authorities have set a target for production in each mine, and if the workers reach the goal in the 11 weeks, beginning today, each will receive a "10-in-one" ration package from U. S. army stocks—the equivalent of 40,000 calories. In addition, the men in the mine showing the highest production will get an additional 40,000 calories.

Germany and Britain—in the order named—are by far the most important coal producing countries of Europe. Both England and the continent of course are in dire need of an increase in many kinds of industrial production, but virtually all manufacturing depends on the power produced by coal which must be hewn from the black caverns of the earth by human hands.

Because the human element enters in so heavily one would think that perhaps the incentive bonus being offered in Germany would have its attractions. After all, men go down into the dark and often dangerous mines for a reward. Maybe Mr. Bevin will get a further idea from the project in the Ruhr.

Hughes-Hollywood Blond Furor Brings Gay 90's Song To Mind

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 29—The longer I listened to the evidence about the mighty flying boat of Howard Hughes—said to be the finest job of carpentry since Noah's ark—the more I thought about that celebrated ditty of the gay nineties, 'Come Josephine in My Flying Machine."

The senatorial investigators tried to stick to the $18,000,000 the government spent for a wooden plane with wings as long as a football field And the witnesses kept mentioning the Hollywood beauties who seem destined to become an integral part of the story about the biggest flying machine ever built

There was, for instance, a toothy little man, gray of hair, precise of manner, and clad in a suit of widely spaced checks and shoes with rubber soles nearly an inch thick He identified himself as Grover Loening, the pioneer aviator, assistant to Orville Wright, inventor, plane designer, and war-time consultant to the war production board

Oldest Active Pilot

"I am the oldest (he's 58) active pilot in America," he said "In the world, I guess"

He went on from there, to tell how he urged the government to steer clear of the visions dreamed up by Henry Kaiser of ocean-going freighters with wings on 'em to foil the German subs

Loening told how he went west to inspect Kaiser's plans, which consisted of artist's drawings of the ships winging hundreds of tons of freight across the Atlantic He told also how he met Howard Hughes, the sometimes movie magnate, tool builder, and airplane designer, who became Kaiser's partner and who actually built the first plane

The intensely serious Loening then read from a prepared statement about his own assortment of Hollywood Josephines who rode with him in his flying machine

Didn't Get Entertainment

He said he didn't need to accept the hospitality of Jonnny Meyer, the fabulous press agent of the fabulous Hughes, who will tell Thursday about the lovelies he hired to entertain the big-wigs from Washington None of these curvaceous cuties entertained Loening

"I have my own girl friends in Hollywood," he read "With them I passed those necessary relaxing moments that any normal man should do to keep a good sane balance in his health and work"

Sen Homer Ferguson of Mich., heading the investigating subcommittee, gulped. He said he hadn't intended to bring up the subject of girls just yet, but since Loening had done so, perhaps he'd care to tell more

'Exactly" said Loening "I had my own friends But Mr Meyer did offer to entertain me I did not accept, but I was not surprised or shocked at his offer"

Advice Ignored

He went on to say that after the contract was made against his advice and $9,000,000 had been spent on useless carpentry, he urged that it be cancelled before the government wasted any more money. Again he was ignored

"Well do you think the plane ever will fly?" Sen Ferguson asked.

'Yes, I think so" Loening replied "And because of its sheer size it will break many world records If it goes very fast I should very much fear because of its wooden construction, flutter in the tail and the wings But it will fly And after the pilots have been thoroughly photographed, including Mr Hughes looking very tired, it will be run up on the beach like any old movie set"

Wish I could forget that song "Come Josephine . . . "

HUGHES "SON." Glen Cordes, 15, who signed in at a Chicago hotel as "Howard Hughes and Family' and treated two friends to a rich man's party, saw his bubble burst when the hotel manager discovered that the aircraft magnate has no son Cordes, on the strength of his millionaire "father," was given a "$40-a-day suite, a chauffeur-driven 1947 Cadillac and $75 worth of steak dinners

Despite G.O.P. Cuts, Budget Will Reach Truman Figure, Experts Say.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 29—Administration budget experts said today that despite congressional cuts, federal spending this fiscal year will run fairly close to the $37,500,000,000 estimate outlined by President Truman last January.

It may even exceed that figure when all the items are totaled up next June 30, these analysts told a reporter.

They said the main reason for this is that congress voted a number of appropriations—chiefly for foreign aid—which were not figured in when Mr. Truman drafted his budget estimates

Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the house appropriations committee—sparkplug of the Republican economy drive—came up with his third set of figures in three days last night. And Rep. Gore (D-Tenn), self-described 'waterdog" of GOP promises in the house to trim the budget by $6,000,000,000 countered with is party's third compilation

Taber contended in a radio speech that total savings to the treasury "as a result of the operations of the first session of the 80th congress" amounted to $4,403,700,000 He added that in addition the lawmakers rescinded $2,684,000,000 in previous appropriations

Last Saturday Taber first told the house that the treasury is better off by $4,423,000,000 and a few hours later said the savings will amount to $4,995 000,000

Gore's statistics, issued in the form of a statement, credited the Republicans with 'total genuine reductions" of $1,267,661,000 That compares with a $1,199,000,000 cut the Tennessean conceded in a speech last Saturday But it was almost $1,000,000 000 less than Rep Cannon (D-Mo), top Democrat on the appropriations committee, gave the GOP. credit for on the same day

Emphasizing that they have no desire to get caught in the middle of that argument, the men who keep track of such things for the administration said their rough guesses on the amount of the congressional savings run in the neighborhood of $1,600,000,000

Only about 500 natives remained in Dunkerque, France when it was liberated from the Nazis in May, 1945

Invasion of Vampire Bats Infected With Rabies Threatens

By The United Press

NEW YORK, July 29 — The number of rabies cases from mad dog bites is on the increase in the United States, a Rockefeller foundation scientist disclosed today in making recommendations for federal regulation to keep the disease under control.

The scientist, Dr. Harald N Johnson, warned also that the vampire bat, a carrier of the disease, has been found in Mexico near the U. S border, and may migrate into this country.

Dr. Johnson's studies, made under the auspices of the international health division of the Rockefeller foundation and the Alabama state board of health, were reported on in the annals of the New York Academy of Sciences.

"The gradual increase in the prevalence of rabies in the United States is due to the lack of concerted action in combating the disease," Dr Johnson reported. "Rabies has been eliminated from many communities, but in the absence of any restrictions on the movement of dogs from an area infected with rabies, the disease is apt to be re-introduced"

Of the vampire bat, Dr. Johnson said it is the "only known host that can act as a true carrier of rabies over an extended period without exhibiting evident illness"

"These bats live in caves and hollow trees and normally feed only at night," he said "They seem to prefer to feed on large animals, such as cattle and horses but their hosts include a wide variety of animals and birds They have been known to feed on man."

RACE TRACK SWINDLE GANG HUNTED IN OHIO

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 29 — Search for seven men allegedly involved in a $110,000 race track swindle of a Milwaukee, Wis, furrier turned today to Ohio.

Sgt. James J. McInerney of the Cook county (Chicago) state's attorney's police, said he had reports that one of the men sought was seen Saturday in Sandusky, O., and Sunday in Bellevue, O.

Previously, the police sergeant reported members of the gang had been traced to New York, Cincinnati and Detroit, but no arrests have been made.

McInerney said Arthur Littman, owner of a Milwaukee fur shop, was to be in Chicago today to sign confidence game complaints against the seven men he claims defrauded him.

Littman reported to police that he placed $11,000 in bets on horses with the gang, but that he had not been able to collect his winnings which he estimated at more than $100,000 McInerney said he did not believe the bets ever were placed, and that the ring members had counted on the horses losing.

YOUR HEALTH

Insulin Injections

Diabetes is a disorder in which the body is said to "spill" sugar In other words the body has lost its power to use sugar, with the result that the blood stream becomes clogged with it and the kidneys work overtime to get rid of it.

This condition results whenever the pancreas, a gland located in the abdomen, falls down on its job of manufacturing insulin, the powerful chemical on which the use of sugar depends

The main things in the treatment of diabetes are to supply insulin through injections under the skin and to regulate the diet so that no more sugar is given than can be taken care of by the insulin.

When diabetes occurs in children—as it frequently does—great care must be taken to give them enough food "to grow on" without at the same time overtaxing their impaired ability to use sugar.

According to Dr. Julian D Boyd, of the State of Iowa, the diet should meet all of the child's needs for best nutrition and should be carefully worked out so as to supply the necessary amounts of proteins, such as are supplied by meat, milk and eggs, enough starchy foods and sugars, as well as sufficient fat As the child grows older the diet will have to be altered from time to time to meet his need for increased amounts of food

Enough insulin should be given to keep the urine free from sugar at all times of the day and night. Thus, it may necessary from time to time to change the dosage as the diabetes either improves or becomes more severe If sugar appears in the urine, it means that the management is not satisfactory.

When an infection occurs in a diabetic, it is likely to upset his routine and to cause sugar to appear in the urine Thus, during infections, special attention must be given to the insulin requirements.

Once the child reaches young adult life, it would appear to be somewhat easier to maintain the control of the diabetes This does not mean that the strict diabetic diet is abolished, but the disease tends to become more stable, that is, less subject to change during this period.

There are a number of different forms of insulin which can be used One type called globin insulin is suggested, together with doses of regular insulin

As a rule, according to Dr Boyd, in the diabetic child, it is necessary to give two or three doses of insulin during the day, but night injections can frequently be avoided.

If the diabetes is kept under satisfactory control, the child will make good progress and normal growth. If, on the other hand, the condition is neglected, various disorders are likely to arise, and growth and development will not proceed in the normal way

"We the Peepul"

CONGRESSMEN are coming home to find out what "we the peepul" think. Here's wishing them luck.

"We the Peepul" are mixed up, and that goes double for people boasting they have all the answers; they're really mixed up. People are hunting for answers these days, not finding them.

This is where the American form of government gets involved. The people are as smart as the leaders in representative democracy, yet leaders are indispensable. This never fails to shock those who have been fooled into thinking there can be government by mobocracy and high-pressure blocs.

Therefore, congressmen hoping to find out what the people are thinking had better spend their time finding out what they, the congressmen, are thinking. The most monumental foolishness of recent times is the passion for finding out what people think without finding out what makes them think, or whether they are thinking at all.

Chances are that any congressmen who says he has found out is either kidding, or is trying to fob off his own opinion as public opinion. Until evidence to the contrary is forthcoming, the only safe thing a congressman can discover about his constituents in 1947 is that their thoughts range from A to Z, with an aching vacuum in between where this country's leadership is missing.

In our opinion—only ours, no one else's—the most useful thing a member of the 80th congress could discover in the next few months are his own two feet and a rugged determination to stand on them, come hell or high water.

There's an important, even a distinguished, place in our national affairs for public figures who have nothing to lean on but their own integrity; for legislators with a deaf ear for lobbyists and terrorists; for patriots who vote for their own convictions; for men less interested in reelection than in their personal principles; for Americans interested in proving that the founding fathers knew what they are doing when they secured the blessing of liberty to themselves and their posterity.

There are deadly clashes occurring in this country and in the world—battles to death. This shouldn't frighten anyone unduly; it always has been this way. Strife is one of the natural conditions of existence. Men who know what they believe welcome a chance to fight for it. They find satisfaction in the plaudits and in the jeers of their countrymen; in being one of the privileged few whose leadership is respected even by those who disagree with it.

"We the peepul" could wish that this vacation a great many congressmen trying to find out what we think would look inside themselves, instead, and find there the previous qualities that have kept the United States from bending the knee to dictatorship.

Shaw Is 91

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW is getting touchy as an old maid about his age, but he's only 91. Each year he huffs and puffs in mock exasperation when well-wishers congratulate him. As the great iconoclast himself pointed out on an anniversary some years ago, why should anyone be congratulated for surviving another year? It requires no great skill; toads, sloths and other stupid creatures do it.

Through the years, Shaw has made some statements which seemed silly, and Americans didn't like it when he addressed them as "dear old boobs." Nevertheless, his hatred of sham, pretentious respectability and irrational social cleavages has resulted in powerful plays for the stages of the world. Many of them remain today as fine examples of the playwright's art and their messages still are pertinent.

Shaw being what he is, no expression of hope for his survival will be made here. He wouldn't approve.

The Royal Castaway

WHY have the Communists tolerated King Michael in red-dominated Romania? For the same reason they tolerated the conservative peasant party leaders—because they feared any attempt to unseat them would cause an uprising.

But now the Communist government has moved against the peasants, jailing the three men who shaped party policy and seeing that cooperative leaders replaced them. Surprisingly, there was no outcry from the populace, which Dr. Maniu, one of the jailed peasant leaders, had described as "a wall protecting my person."

That leaves King Michael a royal castaway in a red sea. Theoretically, he has considerable power, including the right to pardon the three jailed peasant leaders. But he isn't likely to take such action, for the Communists would characterize it as "acting against the best interests of the state."

Michael will not be tolerated as king one day longer than Romania's Communist government thinks necessary. Just sitting quietly with his hands folded will be construed as "plotting against the state" when the time is ripe. And this is the ripening season.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Locating Some of Russia's Vulnerable Spots

WASHINGTON, July 29—Much has been made of the superior size of the Russian army. Our military men frequently mentioned this recently to get their appropriations through congress. But little or nothing has been reported of the critical military weaknesses of Russia. She may be an isolated economic and political power existing behind an iron curtain, but from the military standpoint she is wide open from the air on three sides, and extremely vulnerable on oil.

Russia has a weak underbelly. Her greatest strength lies in manpower (195 million). But China has 461 million, India 389 million, and the remaining Moslem empire more than Russia. Asia's masses have far greater manpower, are inclined by religion to oppose Russia, and if armed effectively in the air, might prevent Russia from thinking of war against the United States.

The custom is to regard Russia as unconquerable because of her vast spaces. Hitler's military mistake was in attempting to devour more than he could chew. No one seems to think of Russia's far vaster, outer circumference of defense, which is really too extensive to be defensible.

Within Limited Space

But these considerations run beyond current military realities. The Russia which has become so aggressive in the world of politics does not comprise eight million square miles, but the few square miles occupied by its few thousand political leaders, chiefly in a few large cities (say Moscow and Leningrad).

She has no navy to defend her coast. Her air fleet strength is not known. An invasion southward from Archangel (warm water port) might be organized feasibly. A simultaneous invasion southwestward from Leningrad (both aimed at Moscow) might be difficult to launch or sustain through the Baltic. In any event, the pinching off of these few square miles in the northwest would be sufficient invasion of Russia for reasonable military men to contemplate (for largely political purposes). Her ports on all sides could be easily closed, as she has no navy. Her use of materials would then have to be limited to her own production, which is too far flung to be bombed effectively, and might sustain her indefinitely However, her oil comes mostly from the Caucusus area, at her southern border, and might easily be cut off, ruining her air potential, and her chief capacity for war.

Possible Strategy

In any event, no one need think of invading Russia the way Hitler did, or further, but could consider dulling her war effectiveness by several ventures including these: (1) making Asia resistance nations into greater military effectiveness; (2) a political invasion of the northwest corner; (3) closing of ports; and (4) concentration on destruction of oil supplies alone.

These considerations do not contemplate much direct use of the existing large armies of the world in Europe, or England; or America, to any considerable extent. As a matter of intervening truth, the U. S. could not use any part of Russia. Her natural danger comes from Asia, where her resources would be welcomed and also from Europe for the same reason—but not as her politicians say, from us.

Surely then, Russia could be effectively isolated in war from the rest of the world without much difficulty. Sure also, the atomic missile and other bombing rocket threats against her are somewhat dulled by her farflung distribution of industry (except oil). Sure also, our defense against use of such missiles is our most vital necessary concern. We are protected everywhere except in the air. We are protected in every way excepting from atomic possibilities and missiles. In these baskets most of our eggs may now be put. We must think of atomic defense, not offense. We must concentrate on air and missile protection.

Stepping Stones Provided

The unification bill, now reaching the statute books, may make this development more possible. Approval of our trusteeships over Jap mandated islands like the Marshalls and Carolines, will give us stepping stones to Asia where we have friends who need developing. Appropriations of nearly $10,000,000,000 for national defense have been made by this congress for the fiscal year to next July 1. Only youth training, among the military plans of our leaders, is likely to fail. The military importance of this is probably less than its social significance because the national guard is being fortified airmindedly to help against any insane attack such as General Eisenhower has envisaged, and other protective steps are being taken.

Actually, then, the realities of the defense situation against Russia disprove her vaunted invulnerability, show her to be exposed, and demand our concentration on atomic and bombing missile defense—a field in which we have no known, adequate defense.

Showers While You Wait

Recent Arizona experiments indicate that dry ice, dropped on a cloud from an airplane, will precipitate a heavy downpour of rain.

Who said everybody talks about the weather and nobody ever does anything about it?

This latest attempt at rain-making is reportedly a momentous development, being just as sure and a lot more scientific than the conventional method, planning a picnic.

The time may have arrived when made-to-order weather will exist elsewhere than in Chamber of Commerce literature, when a citizen with a lawn in need of watering may turn on a cloudburst as easily as a soap-opera heroine in tears.

This will not only prove a boon to gardeners but also fill the long-felt need of weathermen for a non-technical alibi.

It seems, in short, a wonderful invention. But it could prove a dangerous weapon in the hands of the umbrella trust.

MacArthur in Wisconsin

By RAYMOND MOLEY

MADISON, Wis., July 29—Friends of General Douglas MacArthur in Wisconsin do not expect him to stop their efforts to make him their favorite-son candidate in next year's Republican convention. He will probably not be back in the United States before the 1948 election, and he is not likely to make any political utterances. But his supporters will have plenty to say about his great ability, his record and his services in war and peace.

Plans are tentative in the present formative stages of the MacArthur boom. But it is likely that a full set of MacArthur candidates will be entered in the Wisconsin primary next spring. Some of the most ardent members of the La Follette movement are extremely enthusiastic about the general. Former Governor Philip La Follette served with MacArthur in Australia and the Pacific during the war, and it may be taken for granted that the two men discussed many subjects other than military tactics and tropical diseases. Among other things, politics probably played a large part, since the younger La Follette is one of the most astute of American public men.

Important Area

Curious developments are taking place in the political life of Wisconsin. This state's primary is a proving ground of candidates. Here, three years ago, Wendell Willkie met his waterloo. Governor Thomas Dewey, by his decisive victory in that primary, practically assured himself of the nomination. It is one of the earliest and one of the most publicized of presidential primaries. In 1948 it will be fought with great intensity.

Dewey, if he enters, cannot afford to fall below his 1944 mark. A perceptible falling off of the New York governor's popularity might start a serious defection of his delegates elsewhere. Stassen, who has cultivated his political crops in Wisconsin for years, must make a real showing or he will be almost wholly out of the running. If MacArthur should capture all or a large part of the delegation, the whole presidential race may be thrown into confusion.

There is the prospect of powerful support for a MacArthur candidacy in Wisconsin by the Chicago Tribune. The Illinois situation is not yet clear. Most people agree that Governor Green and Colonel McCormick will determine the choice of the delegation. In Wisconsin, some of the MacArthur supporters believe Illinois may finally line up behind the general.

Viewed from Both Sides

To an outside observer, there are elements of strength as well as of weakness in MacArthur as a candidate. He is a luminous, almost a fabulous figure. His administration in Japan has been marred by some defects, but it stands out over the disheartening record in Germany. He is a man of strong spiritual qualities and as a candidate might well dissipate some of the pessimism which pervades American thinking about the world.

On the other hand, MacArthur is not so clearly in the public mind as he was at the time of the Japanese surrender. Military reputations fade. He is in the upper sixties—well beyond all other prospective candidates. A large element in the American population distrusts military men in civil office. And MacArthur has many enemies in official Washington. But his strength in Wisconsin may be sufficient to affect seriously other candidates.

Fire-Bomb Jelly For German Soap

By The Associated Press

FRANKFURT—Five hundred thousand gallons of firebomb jelly—left over from the American air campaign against Germany—have been allocated for conversion to soap and gasoline for the German people.

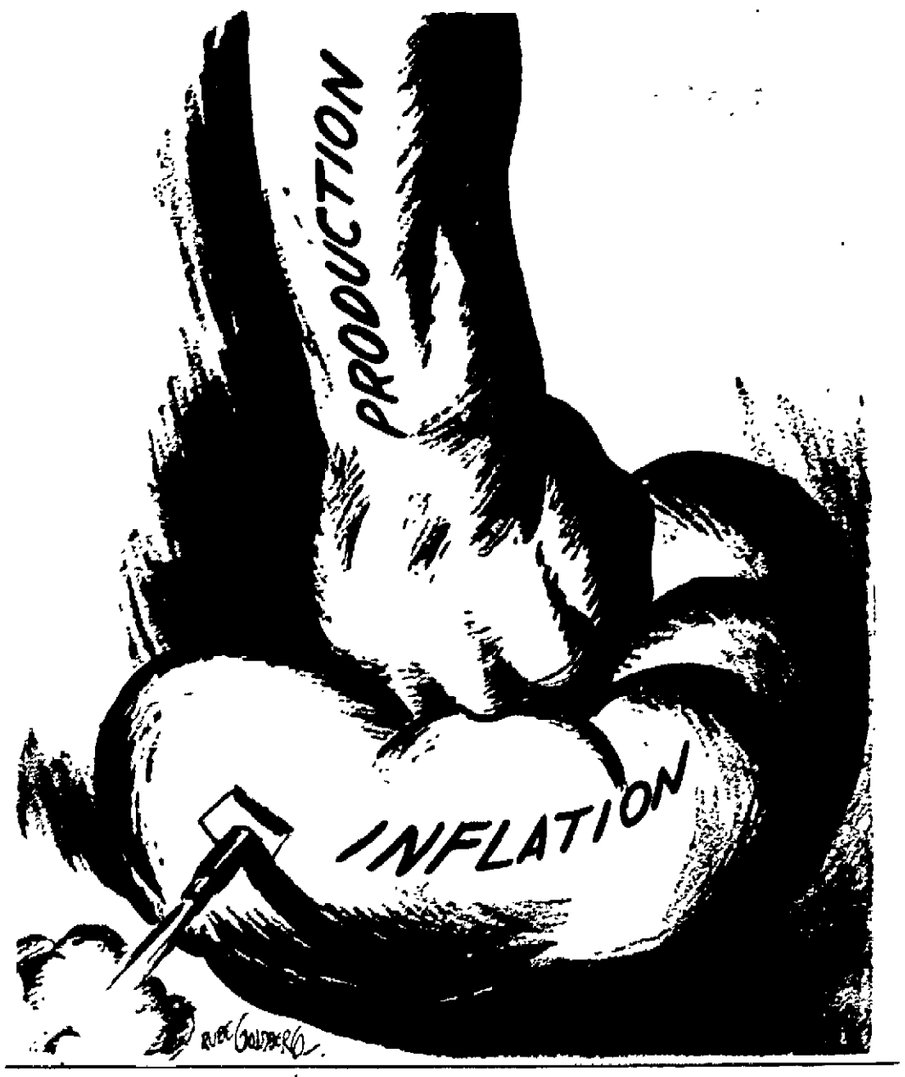
The jelly, priced at $126,000, will be charged by U. S. military government to the German economy and processed by German factories.

Stored in 12,000 steel drums at two air depots near Frankfurt and Nuernberg, a portion of the jelly has deteriorated to such a point that it no longer is of military use, officials said.

Daily Bible Thought

God values the spirit that animates prayer more than he does the form: "Let my prayer be set forth before thee as incense, and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice."—Psalm 141:2.

STRONG ARM NEEDED



From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, July 29, 1937.

Daylight around the clock and ideal weather conditions most of the way lay ahead of a third Soviet transpolar airplane flight, scheduled to start from Moscow for an unannounced destination.

Adjutant and Mrs. John Hunter of Stamford, Conn., formerly in charge of the Salvation Army here, arrived for a short visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Z. Zachman on South Prospect street. They were enroute home from a three weeks' trip to South Dakota.

Union county farmers were planning to complete their wheat harvest by the end of the week. They were quoted as saying the average per acre would not run much over 20 bushels, due to the excessive rains during the preceding several weeks.

The giant smoke stack of the Scioto power station near Newmans was "unveiled" when workmen removed scaffolding from the 409-foot shaft, believed by its builders to be the tallest stack east of the Mississippi river.

County commissioners drafted plans for the annual surface treatment of county roads calling for expenditures estimated at $28,-932.15.

Harry S. Kerr, 74, former Marion resident, died at Wapakoneta, where he had been staying with friends.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday, July 29, 1927.

The page rank degree team of Canby lodge, Knights of Pythias was preparing to enter the state ritualistic contest at Springfield, after winning first honors in the district.

Safecrackers, beleived to be the same ones who burglarized the Pure Oil Co. office on Silver street and blew the safe but left empty-handed overlooking a substantial amount of money that had been left in an envelope.

Funeral services of Monsignor Joseph W. Denning, former pastor of St. Mary Catholic church here, were held at the Blessed Sacrament church at Price Hill in Cincinnati where he was serving as pastor. Among those in attendance were about 165 from Marion, including Knights of Columbus, members of St. Mary congregation and other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Romoser entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner in their home on West Columbia street complimenting Miss Catherine Sloop, her nephew, Raymond T. Sloop and Mrs. T. Detrick and daughter Elizabeth of Akron, who were enroute home from a tour of Yellowstone National park.

Fifty Boy Scouts from Mt. Gilead, Bucyrus, Kenton and Marion appeared before the Harding area court of honor at Camp John A. Owens with A. W. Newby of Marion presiding.

Additional Taxation

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

NOT only has President Truman declined to give the American people relief from high taxes, but the government continues to collect additional taxes. The most interesting and unjust is the payroll tax, euphemistically called "the federal unemployment tax."

I call attention to an interesting pamphlet on this subject issued by the "Research Council for Economic Security" of Chicago. It tells the fact that since 1936 the collection of this tax has amounted to $1,276,611,000. The expenditures amounted to $509,579,-000. The excess of collections over expenditures amounts to $767,-032,000. In other words, the treasury of the United States earned a profit larger than the state and federal expenditures. The payroll tax is good business for the government. It is a hardship upon the American people.

The pamphlet to which I refer says:

"During this period of 1937-1946, expenditures have not been quite 40 per cent of tax collections with a consequent excess of the latter over expenditures of about three-quarters of a billion dollars. The war years of 1942 to 1945 accounted for 50 per cent of the total excess. Moreover, during the fiscal years 1943-1945, the war manpower commission spent $22,100,000 for employment security functions, part of which should be assigned as a cost of administration for unemployment compensation."

Investigation Called For

The administration of this tax is complicated and comes high. This phase of the problem needs full congressional investigation, so that the administration may be made more efficient and more equitable. Furthermore, congress ought to decide on the policy of the government earning a profit on special security. It was intended that this tax be used as a type of government insurance to protect the worker against the perils of unemployment. It was never intended to be an additional tax to enrich the treasury by an indirect means.

This is simply a tax on payrolls, with certain returns to individuals under circumstances of unemployment. Apparently the amount collected is more than twice the amount needed for the purposes of the act. After an experience of 10 years, it is possible to accept it as a fact that if this tax were cut in half, the treasury would have ample funds to meet its obligations under the act. Why, therefore, should not the tax be reduced? What argument can be produced in favor of retaining the present rate which is only an additional tax on our people?

Cumbersome Procedure

Furthermore, why persist in a complicated administration? The pamphlet describes the cumbersome arrangements as follows:

"First, the employer pays the 3 per cent tax (after credit allowed) to the United States collector of internal revenue as an excise tax; eventually the collections rest in the federal treasury. Second, congress makes appropriations to the several states. Third, the treasurer of the United States pays these grants to the various states within which the collections under the tax levy were made in the first place. Finally, the state unemployment compensation systems spend these grants for administrative expenses—and are thus spending monies raised by federal taxes. It should be remembered that employers also pay unemployment taxes to the states, which means that they are subject to dual reporting and payment of taxes for this one purpose."

Many proposals have been made to solve this problem which affects so many American citizens. The solutions are as involved as the act itself. What is required is a full study of the problem by congress with a view toward revising the entire system. Politicians seem to be unwilling to touch the subject; yet it requires correction. The whole proposition is unfair to all parties to it. It is unfair because it is only an additional tax. It is only another way of collecting more taxes.

Limit of Sound Taxation

Harry Truman vetoed every measure to give the American people relief from enormous taxation which makes the government extravagant, raises prices and siphons off from each individual's private savings amounts which heretofore in American life were used for the development of new business. Men improved their lives and built their families not upon government grants and doles but on their savings. Any additional tax on individuals or on industry is harmful to the country, when it is burdensome, inequitable, cumbersome—it harms America.

The Once Over

Letters for Special Delivery

TO THE CITY OF MIAMI,

Gents:

I just read a news item that Miami has voted to tax all visitors on their hotel bill and it grieves me very sad. For a long time, boy and man, I have felt this was one city that was determined to spread the welcome mats thick, give the glad hand full sweep and never join the cities which tax a stranger for his presence within their boundaries.

If there was one thing I thought Miami would never do was to tax the tourist trade for coming down there. It has for years been the bonny maiden of the hearty welcome and the comfy backslap. The nightclubs, the race tracks, the hotels and the restaurants might lay it on thick, but the city government was always out in front with a warm smile, a sympathetic attitude and a Chautauqua salute.

You could start a riot in Biscayne Park any time by suggesting that visitors be taxed by the city and that Miami join the communities out to get their cut in a big way. Down Florida way they even exempted you from certain taxes to get you on the visiting list. The Fishers and the Hannegans and the Joe Coppses were prominent Miami Beach boosters, but Miami was all for their time-honored custom of spreading the welcoming spirit, meeting you at the train, tossing a floral horseshoe around your neck and assuring you that you were out of the cold northern areas where cities thought mainly of money and percentages. Tax you on your visit? Make your hotel visit more costly? Only over their dead bodies!!

You might go to the cleaners through the cost of living in a winter resort but the city government was your pal and your protector, with no syphon extending into your pants pockets. The Miami area was built up through its warm heartedness toward tourists. Its advertisements always seemed to say that if you ever got short City Hall would lend you money. And now you join the parade of the cities which "gotta nick the customers, too!"

Say it ain't so, Miami!

The climate's wonderful, the days are longer and the sunshine is out of Paradise but the benefits will seem modified if the customer have to pay through the nose. That gulf stream is a great asset, but it is most attractive without a cover charge.

Yours,

ELMER.

P.S. The paper says Mayor Palmer said "Tourists enjoy the advantages of Miami facilities and pay no direct taxes to the city for its benefits." Goshamighty the tourist trade built a whistle stop into a great metropolis, mayor. Their patronage has made it one of the most profitable resorts on earth. Don't let that gulf stream hear that line about neglect in paying direct taxes to City Hall or it may change its course as a matter of justice.

And he tells the one of the fellow who, urged to take another drink by a friend pretty well under the weather, refused. "Oh, come on," the friend argued. "If anybody notices anything, I say it's my breath." "Perhaps," was the answer, "but suppose they also ask, 'Is that you staggering'?"

A Million—Free

By TRUMAN TWILL

We are giving away a million dollars today—another in a series of free ideas for improving the American standard of living.

Every person who eats regularly in restaurants knows there are two standard attitudes among the customers. One is the attitude of persons who are ravenously hungry and in a mood to eat what it set before them. The other is the attitude of persons who are in the restaurant because it is mealtime; they aren't particularly hungry and, therefore, are hard to please.

This is true of all three meals, but particularly the noon meal, the one most frequently eaten in restaurants and probably the least appreciated. Remember, we are talking about regular restaurant patrons, not middle-aged ladies having lunch together so they can kill a couple of hours painlessly.

Regular patrons, in millions of cases every day, don't really know what they want for lunch or if they want anything at all. They grouse and grumble over the combinations of food on the menu. They drive waitresses to the verge of breakdowns. They object to this and to that. The result is, they knock the restaurant, suffer from acid indigestion, and have a miserable time. This is true all the way from the lunch-wagon trade up to hoity-toity hovels where the lunch check looks like a family grocery bill for a week.

Something needs to be done about it. We know what it could be. Restaurants could put out their lunch stuff on a table for patrons wanting a little of this and a little of that and not much of anything. They could apply the demonstrated appeal of the smorgasbord to finicky customers. Those who didn't feel finicky wouldn't need to be affected. But all others could select what they wanted—a dagwood sandwich, iced tea with plenty of ice, a splat of this, a goo of that, all to suit themselves.

The charge for this privilege would be the same as the charge for a full meal. There would be cases when the customer would eat more, but these would be rare. Most customers would gladly pay extra for the privilege of eating less but to their own specifications. In any event, they've been gladly paying extra for the privilege of doing it in smorgasbords for a good many years.

There would be a net saving in the food supply, because less food would be wasted. Restaurants could win back some of the good will they've lost during a period when most restaurant meals served for less than $5 were from hunger. Restaurant patrons would have less acid indigestion. This would be a brighter, happier world—well, anyway, it would be gastronomically brighter.

During World War II, non-military uses of rubber in the United States were cut from 600,000 tons to less than one-quarter of that total.

He said he did not establishments should d because on unnamed would not "stay in claimed that the new ordinance would result in establishments opening promptly at midnight Sunday and would take business out of town late Saturday nights. One establishment now has been opening at midnight Sunday, while others have voluntarily remained closed.

Following discussion, the poll of council members on the measure showed six for and two against the ordinance. Registering dissents were Councilmen Harold Robinson and Malcolm Severns.

Football Controversy

Sid Tennant, head of the Marion semi-pro football team, appeared before council and in a heated discussion declared he would bring court action in an effort to obtain use of Lincoln park for his games this fall.

Chief obstacle in the way of Tennant's use of the park is a contract given by the city park board to the Marion Baseball club for the use of the field and stands. The contract has two years to run. The football team played at the Harding stadium last year but Tennant said he was unable to make arrangements for that field this year.

Tennant said he had been to the park board, council and the city solicitor and was told "nothing could be done." He said his next step would be in the courts, to test the legality of the lease, declaring the contract restricts he use of public property.

Council also heard a first reading of an ordinance to raise council members pay from $12.50 a month to $30 for councilmen and $35 for council president. The present pay schedule has been in effect since 1907.

Speaks for C. of C.

J. E. Oliphant of the Chamber of Commerce civic planning committee appeared before council urging city action to obtain an agreement with inter-city bus company officials to set up a local terminal providing adequate parking space "to keep the buses off the streets."

Mr. Oliphant also mentioned what he termed an approaching critical situation shown in the present trend of service stations to occupy the better corners in the business district. He asserted this trend is resulting in depreciation of property valuation in the business district, taking up parking space needed by shoppers while at the same time reducing city revenue and detracting from the appearance of the business district. Mr. Oliphant urged that council give some thought to downtown planning to protect the appearance of the city, especially in respect to the erection of one story buildings.

Harry Bailey, of 701 Roslyn Place, appeared before council to register a complaint about unpleasant odors from catch basins in his neighborhood which he claimed "have not been cleaned out for months." He also sought action by council to insure removal of Canadian thistles and other weeds from a vacant lot abutting his property, asserting that weed seeds soon would infest not only his own property but would take root in neighboring Lincoln park land. Mr. Bailey's first request was referred to a council committee and the second to the board of health for investigation.

Other Action

Other action approved by council include: ordinance changing a parcel of land at the corner of Gill and Bellefontaine avenue from a residential to a commercial district; ordinance vacating 200 feet of the south end of alley east of Kensington place, and 12 feet off of east end of the alley running east and west along south line of lot 2556; ordance appropriating additional funds for various city departments; ordinance appropriating $350 to provide stenographic service and supplies to codify all ordinances; resolutions and appropriations.

A request by Niles R. Babcock to change a Belmont street location from the residential to commercial zone to permit opening of a barbershop and icecream store, was referred to the planning commission. A public hearing on the request of B. R. Hurst for a residential to commercial zone to permit erection of a florist shop at the southwest corner of Superior street and Delaware avenue was set for Sept. 8. The planning commission report received by council disapproved his request.

KAISER

Kaiser said he kept the appointment but Loening did not.

He said he was kept "cooling my heels" for most of a day while a WPB committee met.

Finally, he said, he was permitted to lunch with the committee.

He continued:

"Mr. Loening was a totally different man. Mr. Douglas had switched, and I still don't understand it to this day."

Knew "Score"

A little later, Kaiser said that when he finally was admitted to lunch "I knew what was going on and I didn't have to be hit over the head." He added:

"In my opinion it was a beautiful frame-up to kill the aircraft cargo program, and it succeeded."

Kaiser said he does not know to whom in Washington the committee talked and then cooled on the cargo plane idea, but that he would like the committee to try to find out.

Chad F. Calhoun, a Kaiser aide, sat beside the industrialist while he testified, occasionally supplying an answer to Kaiser. Ferguson finally had Calhoun sworn as a witness and then asked him whether he knew of anybody in Washington who was "giving Mr. Kaiser the brush-off."

"I most certainly do," Calhoun replied. "Mr. William Batt and Mr. Merrill Meigs."

Batt is a former WPB vice chairman. Meigs was one time chief of WPB's aircraft division.

Wants To Know Why

Senator Cain (R-Wash) wanted to know why Batt and Meigs gave Kaiser the brush-off.

"That's what we have never known," Calhoun replied. "We would like the committee to find out."

Kaiser gave the committee a long general statment and also what he termed a "supplementary statement."

In the supplementary statement, Kaiser referred to yesterday's testimony by Meigs that Kaiser is one of the world's greatest salesmen.

"The term super-salesman can well be used in a complimentary sense," Kaiser said, "but I would be naive indeed if I assumed that it was used in a complimentary sense with reference to me."

Lists Interests

He said that "to straighten out, once and for all, the matter of whether Henry Kaiser is a builder or some kind of super salesman," he wanted to list his interests.

Among them he cited what he called the largest sand, gravel and ready-mixed concrete business in northern California, the world's largest cement plant, an insurance company and seven hospitals, the west's only integrated steel plant, the Kaiser-Frazer automobile corporation, and half a dozen others.

"This peacetime record should make it amply clear that whatever success I may have achieved is based on the fact I am a builder and no mere super salesman," Kaiser said.

Senators Clash

Before Kaiser was permitted to testify, Senators Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Pepper (D-Fla.) clashed sharply over the procedure to be followed.

Kaiser had prepared a statement but Ferguson wanted to ask some questions.

The statement declared his plans to build a vast fleet of cargo-carrying airplanes — and thus thwart Hitler's submarines —got a "clever, mysterious kiss-off."

"Can't you find out why?" the statement asked the senators.

When Ferguson started to ask questions, Kaiser said he would prefer to be allowed to read his statement first and then answer questions.

"I'd rather ask you a few questions and then we'll make your statement a part of the record," Ferguson said.

Pepper objected.

He said if Kaiser were permitted to proceed in his own way it would give him a "fairer opportunity to present his story."

Chairman Brewster (R-Me.) of the full committee supported Ferguson.

Kaiser brought with him what he called a "supplementary statement," in addition to a longer one he had previously sent to the committee and given reporters.

"I am in the position of being seriously damaged by the evidence that was presented yesterday," Kaiser said. "I worked until 2 or 3 o'clock this morning preparing a supplement."

Former government officials testified yesterday about the $40,000,000 in contracts awarded Kaiser and Howard Hughes, movie producer and industrialist originally associated with Kaiser in the plane-building project. They said the contracts were awarded despite the opinion of technical experts that the Kaiser-Hughes plans were "fantastic."

Don't Use Planes

No planes produced under the contracts are in use by the armed services.

In his statement to the committee, Kaiser categorically denied:

▶That he put "the heat of hell on Washington" to build the cargo planes as Secretary of the Interior Krug declared last week.

▶That he was present at any of the parties at which Hughes entertained high government officials.

▶That Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late president, had anything to do with the letting of the cargo plane contract.

"This committee is welcome to question me in detail about Hollywood glamor or blondes, but the only girls I know about are the patriotic women who left their kitchens, entered war industries and did an unforgettable job toward winning the war," Kaiser asserted.

"Referring to sensational rumors preceding this investigation I want to state that I do not recall ever having met Elliott Roosevelt, and I never have had any business relations with him."

Firemen Extinguish 2 Automobile Fires

Two automobile fires occurred in Marion Monday in the vicinity of the Marion Power Shovel Co. plant.

A short circuit in wiring caused both fires. Firemen were called at 1:30 p. m. to West Center street in front of the Marion Power Shovel Co. offices where a car owned by Carl Barkley of Kenton was burning. Loss was estimated at $10.

Firemen received their second call at 7:29 p. m. to the Marion Power Shovel Co. parking lot on the corner of Davids and Bennett streets. Fire in an automobile had spread to the front seat cushion and caused an estimated loss of $10.

RUSSIAN ARMY MORALE FALLS

Wave of Discontent Sweeping Soviet Troops Stationed in Austria.

By International News Service

VIENNA, July 29—A wave of discontent is sweeping the ranks of Russian soldiers assigned to Austria, necessitating a series of drastic counter-measures by the Soviet high command to maintain order and discipline.

A high Allied source disclosed that Russian soldiers on several occasions have refused to sacrifice the comparatively high standard of living in Austria and return to their own homes and working conditions.

Fifty-seven Russian officers and their families were reported to have committed suicide at Moedling, a small town 10 miles south of Vienna, when they were ordered to return.

Allied Contact Prohibited

Col. Gen. Nikolai Kurasov, Russian high commissioner in Austria, frequently has issued orders prohibiting contact between Soviet troops and the Austrian population. There has been a general discontinuance of furloughs with the aim of preventing Russian soldiers from spreading the truth of western living conditions.

Many Russian units have served without relief for the last eight months and have been deprived of all contacts with Allied representatives so they might not be "poisoned by capitalist thinking."

Marriages Forbidden

Marriages between Russians and Austrians are rigorously forbidden.

The Allied source said the salaries of some Russian soldiers have not been paid for two months, leading to a great increase of black-market operations. He added that soldiers returning to Russia are searched at frontier stations and are stripped of all possessions obtained in the west, including clothing, furs, watches or any other items of "western origin."

The mental attitude of Russian occupation forces in Austria is described as "demoralized and disappointed." Desertions are estimated at 200 monthly. The Russians go "A.W.O.L." by disguising themselves in civilian clothes and taking refuge in the high mountains of southern Austria.

Others change their names and pass themselves off on Allied officials as "displaced persons."

BRITISH CUT IN ARMS CALLED LIKELY STEP

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 29—Authoritative sources said today Great Britain might reduce her armed forces and dip into her £640,000,000 ($2,560,000,000) gold and dollar reserve as emergency measures to meet the prospective winter economic crisis.

Left wing Labor party members have been urging the government to cut down the army, navy and air force, which had 1,297,300 men at the start of the month.

Field Marshall Viscount Montgomery, chief of the British imperial general staff, was to cut short his Far Eastern tour and fly home within a few days to advise the labor government concerning reduction of the armed forces, these informants said.

Whitehall sources said tapping the gold and dollar reserve would be a stopgap between the time when the $3,750,000,000 loan from the United States is exhausted late this year or early next and the time when the projected Marshall plan or some other U. S. program of financial aid to Europe became effective. (Congress, adjourned until January, would have to approve and appropriate any additional billions for Europe).

A wave of selling dropped some British securities as much as $4 yesterday an the London stock exchange. The financial Times attributed the bearishness to "disquiet over the economic situation with possible political repercussions."

The possibility that Prime Minister Attlee's government might call a new general election was considered seriously in financial and political circles. The Labor party's Daily Herald said talk of a possible coalition government was "fantastic."

Seek Device To Dry Corn

U. S. Searches for Cheap Machine in Effort To Hold Down Meat Prices.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 29—The government called upon its best engineering brains to develop a machine which—by lessening the effect of frost damage to the nation's corn crop—would help keep meat supplies on an even keel.

Due to a cool, wet planting season, much of this year's corn is late. Some of it—possibly a large portion—will be killed by frost before it has fully matured.

Such corn, describec by farmers as "wet" corn, is high in moisture content and does not store well. Likewise, it does not have as good feeding quality as fully-matured corn.

With every grain needed in a world short of food and with the government eager for a downturn in meat prices, officials are anxious to see that none of this year's anticipated "wet" corn goes to waste.

They are placing much of their hopes on the ability of agriculture department engineers and grain experts to develop, within the next 30 days, a portable, low-cost, corn-drying machine that could be produced in quantity this fall and early winter.

Such a machine, they say, would be of vital help in drying high-moisture corn to meet livestock feeding needs until the 1948 corn crop is harvested.

Should a large portion of this year's crop be caught by frost, farmers would be confronted with the necessity of feeding as much of the grain as they could in the immediate months ahead.

This would result in a shortage of the grain next spring and summer. The result for the consumer would be relatively large supplies of meat until next spring. Then supplies would be short and prices would skyrocket, providing consumer demand held strong.

On the other hand, if farmers were able to dry much of their wet corn, they could spread their feeding operations more evenly over the next 12 to 15 months, and thereby provide consumers with a more constant supply of meat.

Steel Firm Profits Soar But Executive Is Glum

By The Associated Press

MIDDLETOWN, O. July 29—Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Co., says a sharp increase in earnings for the first six months of 1947 do not yet reflect "the full impact" of rising production costs.

Armco's consolidated net earnings for the first half of this year totaled $12,230,981 equivalent to $3.64 a share, the company announced yesterday. This compared with $$7,022,616 or $1.93 a share for the same period last year.

The consolidated net for the second quarter of 1947 was $6,312,104, or $1.88 a share, compared with $7,022,616 or $1.93 a share in the same quarter of 1946.

"Since the end of the second quarter additional increases in cost have been incurred due to the coal wage settlement and further advances in scrap prices which made necessary our price advance of July 24, 1947," Hook said.

Armco directors declared a common dividend of 50 cents a share payable Sept. 15 to stockholders of record Aug. 15.

Hay Fever Victims Told Weather May Make '47 Bad Year

By The United Press

COLUMBUS, July 29—There was bad news in the air today for Ohio's army of sneezers—the hay fever sufferers.

It came from Dr. Jonathan Forman of Columbus, who knows his ragweed and goldenrod backwards and forwards.

Dr. Forman blamed the weather which gets the blame for most everything. He said if the weather continues wet and cool, many hay feaver cases will become asthma. This added to barometric pressure changes, will play real havoc with sufferers of pollen allergies.

The hay fever specialist claimed that the country is being plagued this season by many new microscopic molds on grain and soil, and added, "the only good crops in the state this year are wheat and ragweed."

War-depleted soil, overworked to feed ourselves and our allies, tends to make crops more likely to carry these microscopic spores that sent victims into frenzies of sneezing.

For instance, take wheat spores, Doctor Forman said. "The spores on wheat are only one-tenth as large as ragweed polle, but 10 times as plentiful," he noted. "When farmers cut the wheat, the air will be filled with these pests." The farmers are cutting the wheat.

According to the doctor, if you sneeze before Aug. 1, or after the end of the season, on Sept. 15, you are allergic to these molds. And Aug. 15 is the peak.

But there's some hope for you handkerchief weilders. Dr. Forman claimed that a new drug, "hydrylin," may give relief. He added that scientific farming, to get rid of the pests may help.

However, Dr. Forman indicated that medical science still doesn't have a sure cure, can offer only a comforting "gezhundheit."

JOB BENEFITS PAID TO 108

Weekly Average Shows a 15 Per Cent Decline from Previous Month.

The weekly average of persons receiving unemployment benefits in the Marion area was 108 for the month of June, it is shown in a report by Fred B. Scherff, manager of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office here. This was a 15 per cent decline from the preceding month when the weekly average was 127.

The number of new claims for benefits during June increased 22 per cent from 85 in May to 104 in June. Of these claimants 84 of the 104 were unemployed individuals covered by the Ohio law and 20 were unemployed veterans receiving weekly payments under the servicemen's readjustment allowances program.

Mr. Scherff also stated that the employment service division of the Marion office had made 232 placements during June. This figure was practically the same for May when 230 placements were made.

The number of persons registered for employment in the active file of the Marion office of the OSS was 740 or 13.6 per cent greater than the number of persons registered in May 31. This was due to the registering of college and high school students for summer employment.

Reports to Governor

Frank J. Collopy, new administrator of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, reported to Governor Thomas J. Herbert a sharp contrast in veteran and non-veteran claims for unemployment benefits between May and June.

The volume of initial claims under the servicemen's readjustment act, which is administered in Ohio by the Bureau, took a 47 per cent jump to a new high since last January of 14,678. In contrast, Ohio law initial claims, totaling 16,712 last month, were 5 per cent below May. Mr. Collopy accounted for the difference in the fact that a large number of veterans registered for summer jobs at the end of their school terms.

The BUC administrator pointed out that of those unemployed claimants eligible for Ohio law benefits nearly one half are women and most of the men are over 45 years of age.

Little Change in Average

The overall average of persons drawing weekly unemployment benefits was approximately the same as for May. These 44,306 individuals were almost equally divided between SRA and Ohio law recipients. The gross payment to them for June amounted to $3,391,024 — down 3 per cent from May.

Mr. Collopy revealed that the Ohio Trust Fund, including interest due, totaled over $514 million at the end of June—approximately $245 for each worker.

Social Hour Features Mission Group Meeting

A business session and program were followed by a social hour during which Mrs. G. E. Shoemaker, the oldest member of the group, was honored, at a meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of Emanuel Lutheran church, Friday afternoon in the church parlors. A song by the group and devotions by Mrs. R. A. Geer opened the meeting. Misses Jean and Jane Uncapher, accompanied at the piano by Miss Wanda McMahan, sang a duet and Mrs. Carl Hoffman presented the topic, "Race Relations." Mrs. H. H. Dawson gave a talk on "Lutheranism" and Miss Mc Mahan reviewed the first chapter of Genesis.

A report on the state convention held at Columbus recently was given by Mrs. George Turner. It was voted to contribute $50 for two scholarships for missionaries in India and $60 to the support of a Bible woman in the mission field.

Mrs. Shoemaker, who celebrated her eighty-fourth birthday anniversary July 15, was honored with a shower of greeting cards and planned as a surprise was the lighted birthday cake. Summer flowers decorated the table. Guests included Mrs. Leo Keller, Mrs. Joseph Belser, Miss McMahan and Misses Jean and Jane Uncapher.

Liquor Investigators' Names Kept Secret

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 29—Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins today said he was withholding for security reasons names of two men assisting his investigation into "overstocking" of the state liquor department.

Jenkins explained he wanted to keep their identify secret to enable them to work under cover.

A formal inquiry into the reason for an estimated $42,000,000 of liquor being in state warehouses got under way yesterday.

One investigator was described as a former FBI agent and the other as a former agent for the bureau of internal revenue. They will be joined by two other investigators later this week.

Jenkins said the investigators would first go over the report of State Liquor Director Dale M. Dunifon on the liquor inventory.

"I think," said Jenkins, "it will take at least two weeks for them to comb this report and familiarize themselves with the operations in the department."

CORN STATES TO GET HOT WEATHER PERIOD

By The Associated Press

Hot weather, with temperatures edging toward the 100 mark, was forecast for some of the nation's major corn producing states again today after yesterday's blistering heat over a wide section of the country.

Temperatures soared to 100 or above in 14 states in the west southwest and in the great plains states, with the top mark of 111 reported by four cities.

A mass of cool air from the Pacific moved into Montana and the western Dakotas today after yesterday's highs of 100 plus in the three states. But federal forecasters in Chicago said the mercury would range from 95 to 100 in Iowa, the leading corn state, and Illinois and in the 90's in Minnesota and Wisconsin. The weather bureau said the high temperatures were "perfect" for the corn crop, which suffered from late spring rains.

Yesterday's high temperatures were topped by the 111 mark in Phoenix and Yuma, Ariz., Blythe, Calif., and Las Vegas Nev., while throughout the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas and parts of Missouri the mercury hit above 100. Highs included 109 at Philip, S. D.; 108 at Miles City, Mont.; 107, Glasgow, Mont.; 104, Pierre, S. D.; 103, Ainsworth, Nebr., and 102 at Kansas City.

International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border and often one of the country's cold spots, reported a high of 92. Generally fair weather prevailed throughout the central section of the country. Scattered thundershowers were reported in the southeastern states and along the Atlantic seaboard.

Four Disabled Vets Acquire Brewery From Dayton Group

By The United Press

DAYTON, July 29—Four disabled veterans of World War II came into a brewery of their own today.

For $6,000, the quartet acquired the "Oi Fashun" brewery here on a no-deadline, interest-free loan made by the Arthur Beerman foundation, formed to help disabled veterans.

The four veterans are Hugh Boltz and William Sowers, natives of Dayton, Meyer Coplin, formerly of Youngstown, and Carl Burhard, of Columbus.

The foundation's Arthur Beerman said the idea stemmed from similar projects in Cincinnati, and in Pennsylvania, where interested citizens turned over small businesses to veteran on a non-profit basis.

Coplin, who wears a wooden leg, is vice president; Boltz, wounded in the Pacific, is treasurer. Secretary Sowers was hit by shell fire in Europe, and Burhard, the second vice president, was also injured while on duty in the Pacific.

Lions Club Hears Musical Program

A musical program under the direction of Miss Virginia Grover was presented at the Lions club luncheon at Hotel Harding Monday.

Robert Axe, first vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Robert Morrison. The program included vocal solos and dance numbers by Marylin and Billy Bishop, and vocal solos by Miss Shirley Wheate, Bob Wingett, and trumpet solos by Wingett.

Guests present were Paul Koehler of Marion, William Rehon of Holyoke, Mass.; Donald Yinger of Portsmouth, Jack Ehlen, a Lions club member from Marysville, and Blaine McCoy a Lions club member from Chicago.

The 45 boys who drove soapbox racers in the recent derby have been invited to the next meeting, which will be in their honor. Several awards will be made to Marion soapbox champions at the meeting.

SCHOOLS

four each for plumbing and electrical work.

Four general contractors, one from Marion and three from out of the city, had indicated interest in the contract, school officials said. The three out-of-town concerns withdrew from the picture, they indicated to school officials because of the uncertain price situation for both labor and materials. They said they had practically all the work they could handle on a cost plus basis and were reluctant to start a project at a previously established figure on costs.

The one bid for the general contract was offered by the Baldauf Construction Co. of Marion. Its figure was $196,737. Labor was set at $88,700 and materials at $108,037.

Bids for heating, plumbing and electrical work were submitted as follows:

Heating—B. F. Kohli Co. of Lima, labor $4,000, materials $25,427.40, total $29,427.40, Sauer Plumbing and Heating Co. of Columbus, labor $5,600, materials $24,320, total $29,920, Huffman, Wolfe Co. of Columbus, labor $9,273, materials $22,000, total $31,273; E. W. File Co. of Lima, labor $6,123, materials $25,866, total $31,989; Gestline Plumbing and Heating Co. of Lancaster, labor $8,900, materials $24,000, total $32,900.

Plumbing—E. W. File Co. of Lima, labor $6,250, materials $10,048, total $16,898; Huffman, Wolfe Co., labor $7,200, materials $11,760; total, $18,960, Sauer Plumbing and Heating Co., labor $7,726, materials $13,620, total $21,340, B. F. Kohli Co., labor $7,575.50, materials $16,439.04, total $24,014.54.

Electrical—Gustav Hirsch of Columbus, labor $5,400, materials $3,547, total $8,947; Triple Service of Marion, labor $3,745.49, materials $5,840.62, total $9,586.11; H. L. Hatcher of Marion, labor $5,107, materials $4,951, total $10,121, E. Strasser of Upper Sandusky, total bid only of $12,941.

These were the bids submitted contractors on the specifications set up by the board when advertising for proposals. However, the board also called for alternate bids which would allow substitution of other materials for those specified in the original plans. As an example, this provided for use of asphalt tile instead of hardwood floors in community rooms, elimination of master clock equipment in the Silver street building and other items.

Still Far Too High

However, eliminations and substitutions reduce the total cost only $18,173. By considering these alternate figures the total cost of equipment and building is found to be $232,748.32. This, plus architect's fees of 6 per cent of the total construction cost and a cushion find set up for possible need in case of unexpected emergencies, places the lowest total cost at $285,448.67.

The original $165,000 figure on the estimated cost of the Silver street work included $105,000 for remodeling, $30,000 for a community room and $30,000 for the addition of two classrooms to take care of a 33 1/3 per cent increase in the school population of the district.

Babies' Deaths Hearing Booked for Wednesday

By Brush-Moore News Service

CANTON, July 29—A hearing is scheduled for Wednesday in Stark county common pleas court here on a motion to dismiss a $160,000 damage suit against the key figures in the June 6 deaths of two infant girls in Massillon City hospital.

Mr and Mrs. Harry Morton, parents of Rosemary, one of the dead babies, have been suppoenaed to testify at the hearing. Efforts to subpoena Robert Fuller, private detective for the Mortons, have been unavailing.

The $100,000 suit was filed in their name and a deposition hearing has been conducted in Massillon in connection with it.

Parents of the six-year-old boy who "confessed" one day to playing with the babies in the hospital and changed his story the following day have refused to let the child, Roger Gue, go to Columbus for an examination.

Cleveland Neighbor Faces Charges in Girl's Slaying

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 29—Stephen Gajdos, 37-year-old ex-war worker, today faced possible murder charges in the shotgun killing last night of 16-year-old Margery Martin.

The police prosecutor was to be presented the facts of the case today. Homicide Detective Theodore Carlson, who investigated the shooting, said there was "no doubt" Gajdos would be charged with murder.

Wounded in a gun battle with patrolmen a few minutes after the girl was shot, Gajdos still was in Lutheran hospital. His injuries were not critical.

Police Captain Harry Weiss, who identified Gajdos, said the girl was shot with a .12 gauge shotgun.

Described by her mother, Mrs. Stephen Martin, as a "wonderful girl," Margery was carrying an armful of soft drinks into her driveway when she was shot.

COLUMBUS, O., July 29—Close associates of Julius F. Stone, 91-year-old former Columbus industrialist who died last Friday in Santa Monica, Calif., received final postcards from him today bearing the picture of a snuffed candle and the following verse:

"With a ripple of merry laughter,
A smile and a gay goodbye
To all who made life worth living;
Back to the dust go I."

Stone had the cards prepared prior to his death with instructions they were to be mailed the day he died.

SELLERS TAKE OVER IN STOCK MARKET

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 29—Sellers continued to have the best of the argument in today's stock market and, with scattered exceptions, leaders extended their retreat by fractions to around 2 points.

Slipping tendencies predominated at a fairly fast opening. A subsequent attempt at a rally failed to follow through.

Accounts again were trimmed on the idea that the sharp comeback from the mid-way lows entitled the list to a much wider technical correction even if the bull swing is resumed later.

Hershey Chocolate jumped about 3 points on a single sale, first transactions since July 15, following a splitup proposal. Martin-Parry responded moderately to an extra disbursement. Expanding net aided Keystone Steel. Publicker was favored, as was International Harvester.

Casualties included Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Oliver Corp., Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Gypsum, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Union Pacific, Texas Co., Pacific Western Oil, Continental Oil, United Fruit and Monsanto Chemical.

ton quotations on steel sheets and bars, and said further upward adjustments on other products would come later.

Others Join In

Other companies to increase prices were: Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., the fourth largest producer; National Steel Corp., the sixth largest; American Rolling Mill Co., Alan Wood Steel Co.; and Lukens Steel Co.

Bethlehem Steel, second to "big steel" in production, has made no announcement.

Meanwhile, steel scrap prices continued to climb. Mills paid from 50 cents to $2.50 a ton more today for Pennsylvania railroad scrap offerings at Pittsburgh. Heavy melting brought $42.75, while specialties such as coil springs and steel wheels brought $47 to $48 a ton.

Pittsburgh dealers paid $40 for No. 1 heavy melting scrap.

Steel production continued to climb back after its recent tumble due to the coal mine stoppage. The operating rate this week was estimated at 94.4 per cent of capacity.

IMMIGRANTS REFUSE TO LEAVE SHIP

By The Associated Press

PARIS July 29 — The French press agency reported today from Port De Bouc that 4,500 Jewish refugees who arrived there this morning aboard three British transports had refused to land in protest against being denied admission to Palestine.

The agency quoted a spokesman for the refugees as saying "they will only get us off here dead."

The agency said M Colaveria, secretary-general of the Bouches-Du-Rhone prefecture, declared he was getting in touch with Premier Paul Ramadier immediately.

The dispatch said it was planned to land only one passenger—a woman suffering from lung congestion.

The agency added that "in spite of official silence the correspondent of the AFP is in a position to affirm that the emigrants are refusing to leave the ships—the women and the sick likewise refusing."

Tiffin 17-Year-Old Boy Held for Manslaughter

By The United Press

TIFFIN, O., July 29 — A 17-year-old tree trimmer, Raymond A. Lee, faced manslaughter charges here today in the death of his brother, Melvin C. Lee, 23, during a quarrel.

The younger Lee is being held in Seneca county jail pending the filing of formal charges by Prosecutor Webb Tomb. A coroner's report held that the older brother died of a broken neck.

Police said the argument ensued over an auto bought by Raymond. Raymond allegedly struck his brother on the back of the neck when he intervened in an argument with his father, Arthur, police reported.

DUTCH REPORT CASES OF NATIVE SABOTAGE

By The Associated Press

BATAVIA, July 29—Dutch military authorities, busily extending their hold on the men resources of Java and Sumatra, today reported scattered instances of Republican sabotage in oil field areas and elsewhere but said that the general situation was developing favorably."

The Netherlands army meanwhile said its casualties had reached 50 killed, 86 wounded and nine missing—a total of 145—since hostilities began July 20. (General Spoorman, Indonesian commander, Saturday estimated Dutch losses at 9,000. His army reported 763 soldiers in Dutch service surrendered yesterday.)

weeks from now "when we know it would be safe." Congress' failure to appropriate sufficient funds to carry on operations resulted in immediate dismissal of 600 of the agency's 700 employes. The rest were retained to liquidate the agency.

Sugar rationing ended at a time when U. S. sugar supplies probably are greater than at any time in history. Supplies for the last half of the year total 3,850,000 tons, as compared with 3,300,000 tons the first six months. Demand also is high. Pipelines are empty and consumers' purchasing power is at peak levels.

MARIETTA PRESIDENT OUSTED FOR DIVORCE

By The Associated Press

MARIETTA, O., July 29—The board of trustees of Marietta college today informed Dr. Wilson Allison Shimer, the institution's 11th president, that it wanted his resignation because of "your separation, divorce and remarriage."

Dr. Shimer had been asked to resign by the board's executive committee two weeks ago in a registered letter delivered to him while he was honeymooning in Canada.

No reason was given in the letter and Dr. Shimer publicly asked for a hearing by the trustees or a bill of particulars.

Today's statement, released by Allen C. Hall of Marietta, secretary of the board, was a letter addressed to Dr. Shimer and signed by the board.

"You have asked for an expression as to why the trustees chose to replace you as president of Marietta college," the letter began.

"The reason was simply your separation, divorce and remarriage.

"The board was not concerned with the pros and cons of the divorce. It believes, however, that the way of life of a college president must be an inspiration to the students and a model both on and off the campus for all to follow."

Dr. Shimer was divorced in July, 1946, by his first wife, the former Edith Richmond.

He was remarried June 21, 1947, to Miss Dorothy Blair, formerly dean of women of Marietta and prior to that head of the college's public relations department.

Extra-Inning Games Point Up Sunday School Softball

Extra inning games were the attraction in the Sunday School league last night.

United Brethren shaded First Presbyterian, 4-3, in nine innings and St. Mary 1 and Epworth were tied at 5-5 at the end of nine.

In the other two games Forest Lawn upset Trinity, 5-3, and St. Mary 2 defeated Greenwood, 9-7.

Jim Kunkle was the star of the day pitching and batting United Brethren to their win. In the last of the seventh he hit a two-run homer to send the game into extra innings and in the ninth he singled in the winning run. Riley homered for Presbyterian.

The Epworth-St. Mary 1 game was called because of darkness and will be played at a later date. Roseberry of Epworth scored in the seventh to tie things up.

Myers homered twice for Forest Lawn as they beat the first round champion and Mulvaine led the losers with two hits. Forest Lawn's big fourth inning came on two hits, a home run, and an error.

Walks and errors proved costly to Greenwood in the seventh inning as they bowed to St. Mary 2. Thorpe homered for the winners and Gorenflo hit safely three times for the losers.

ROSEBERRY SHINES IN HURLING, HITTING AT WINSTON-SALEM

Pitches 2 Victories, Hammers Ball in Right Field Substitute Role.

Since returning to Winston-Salem in the class C Carolina league, Joe Roseberry has won two straight games, according to reports in the Winston-Salem Journal.

The local southpaw has also earned laurels in the hitting department.

He was home for several days because of a sore arm.

Called on to play right field because of injury to the regular fielder, Roseberry slammed out five hits, three of them doubles, for a perfect night against Raleigh July 23. In the ninth inning the Raleigh team went into a Williams shift against him and he singled to center.

Roseberry has also worked in a third game since returning, but for a lost cause. He pitched five innings against Burlington allowing only one run after the starter had been slammed for six in three.

Roseberry's record of 10 wins and three losses ties him for honors with Haddix as Winston-Salem's leading pitcher.

Attendance at Winston-Salem home games was up to 136,497 July 24.

Burbrink and Maxhimer Slated To Start in Tilt with Zanesville

Two Marion performers will be in the starting lineup tonight when the Ohio State league All-Stars oppose the loop-leading Zanesville Dodgers in the fourth annual "Dream Game."

The two Cubs to get in at the beginning because they were first choice of the league writers are Manager Nelson Burbrink behind bat and Dwight Maxhimer in center field. Bill Rosin the, third member of the Cubs to get into the league's select fete, will be among the relief hurlers.

Time of the game is 8 p. m.

Manager Ival Goodman of the Dayton Indians will direct the All-Star group. Goodman moved into the drivers seat because Clay Bryant, first choice of the scribes, will direct his host team in the contest. Manager Don Ramsay will coach for Goodman's team.

West To Hurl

Tony West, Springfield right-hander, was first choice among pitchers and will be the starting hurler in tonight's game. He is not expected to work more than three rounds. Other pitchers on the roster of the All-Stars besides West and Rosin are Ken St. Pierre, Richmond ace southpaw, and Bob Brunner, Newark right-hander.

The All-Stars will present an imposing array of hitters in the contest tonight. Heading the list will be Burbrink with a mark of .398 followed by Bob Verrier of Richmond with a mark of .368 average. Behind these two sluggers will be Johnny Batt of Newark, Vince O'Grady of Springfield, Spike Foster of Muncie.

The starting infield of the Stars will find Batt at first, Mike Sebastian of Dayton at second, O'Grady at short, and Verrier at third. Don Slater of Lima will serve as utility infielder.

Besides Maxhimer the outfield will find Foster, and Billy Scally of Springfield. Jack Maisch of Lima may replace one of these. O'Grady got into the picture when he replaced Morris Mikesell of the host Zanesville club. Maisch moved up to take the place of Bob Bartholomew of Zanesville.

Sandford Lambert, Zanesville, was also the first choice of the scribes for a pitch assignment but he was replaced by Brunner.

Lost Last Two

The All-Stars have lost the last two games of the annual affair after winning the first one at Newark in 1944. In 1945-46 Springfield walloped the dream team.

The Ohio State league chapter of the Baseball Writers of America will hold a meeting before the game. The scribes will also be the guests of the league at a dinner preceding the contest. The league directors are booked for a meeting also. After the game both the All-Stars and the Dodgers will be guests of the league at a dinner.

Fair Weather Forecast For All-Star Contest

By The Associated Press

The Ohio State baseball league cleared the decks today for its fourth annual all-star game tonight as the forecast called for fair weather.

By virtue of being leaders of the circuit, the Zanesville Dodgers, on their home grounds, will take on an All-Star team of players from the other seven clubs.

Ival Goodman, manager of the Dayton Indians, will handle the All-Star team. His team won a doubleheader from the Springfield Giants in the only games played in the league last night. Dayton won the first game 4-2 and the second 2-0.

Line scores:

Springfield	011 000 0—2	4	2
Dayton	100 030 x—4	7	2

Cingolani and Haddix, Jackson and Schrage.

Springfield	000 000 0—0	5	1
Dayton	001 100 x—2	3	2

Greco and Ramsay; Starr and Filkins.

What's Bruin?

The scorekeeper at baseball games at Lincoln park gets about as many reverse cheers as do the umpires. This is especially true on the rare occasions when the Cubs happen to be losing.

Although no decision of the scorer could possibly have any affect on the outcome of the game, the paying customers take out their ire on the poor pencil pushers.

Most fans who show their disgust of the scoring lack knowledge of the official rules. They base their hit-error decisions on the old sandlot rule that it is an error if the fielder touches the ball.

Old Sandlot Rule

The scorers manual published by the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs instructs against this method. The book says it is not necessarily an error nor should the player be exempt from an error because he did not touch the ball.

The chance the player had in making the play must enter into the scorer's judgment.

On plays where the infielder must throw rapidly or not at all it is not a custom to give the player an error for a throw that pulls the baseman off the bag on a close play. It is always necessary for the scorer to take a quick glance at the runner when an infielder fumbles a ball.

Might Have Threw Beaten

Many times the runner would have the throw beaten anyway and he deserves the credit for a hit for forcing the play. It is standard procedure to give the runner the benefit of all doubts when the play is not completed.

The player fielding a ball must have a chance to get in front of the ball. When he is forced to reach to either side and fumbles the ball and loses the runner judgment enters the scene.

In the big leagues with several writers in the press box, the scorer often asks for advice from the others. Not infrequently the opinion of the group will be divided and all have had years of experience at scoring.

Liberal on Tag Plays

Fielders are seldom held responsible for inaccurate throws on plays in which the runner must be tagged unless an extra base is gained, the theory being that runners often slide around a fielder holding the ball. It would be assuming too much to say that the tag would have been made. Of course the decision is different on force plays.

A situation came up here two weeks ago in which the fans criticized the scorer because of a lack of knowledge of the scoring rules.

Roy Hollingshead hit a ball just over the opposing second baseman's head with a runner on first base. The runner thinking the ball would be caught by the keystoner stayed close to first and headed back to the bag. The right fielder came in fast scooped up the rolling ball and fired it to second ahead of the runner coming from first which made the play an ordinary fielder's choice. How far the ball was hit had nothing to do with the scoring. The situation is specifically covered in the scorer's manual.

BLACKWELL BENCHED BY INJURY TO FOOT; ANCIENTS TAKE OVER

Walters and Vandermeer Prop Reds as "The Eel" Goes Into Drydock.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 29 — A couple of veteran hurlers have shouldered the task of "carrying on" for Cincinnati now that the redleg pitching sensation, Ewell Blackwell, is on the shelf with a leg injury.

Bucky Walters, the genial right-hander, and Johnny (Double No-Hit) Vandermeer are the two ancients who aim to take up the slack, occasioned by Blackwell's absence.

Blackie, gunning for his 17th consecutive victory of the season, was scheduled to face the New York Giants tonight but an injury suffered in the Reds - Boston Braves game last Friday has forced Manager Johnny Neun to substitute Ken Raffensberger.

The six-foot five-inch hurler was struck by a line drive and Neun says he'll keep the tall boy off the mound until he's in tip-top shape.

Vandermeer pitched a 5-0 shutout against the slugging Giants yesterday to give evidence that he hasn't lost the old time touch.

Walters threw a two-hitter at the Philadelphia Phillies last Saturday to belie rumors that he's nothing more than a has-been.

The Reds clubbed Mort Cooper and two other New York pitchers for 12 hits and played flawless ball behind Vandermeer, helping him notch his fifth victory.

Dodgers Win 10th Straight As Hatten Beats Cubs, 4-0

By The Associated Press

Joe Hatten the stylish southpaw of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who has beaten Chicago six times without a setback this season, needs only three more triumphs over the Cubs to tie the record for most victories over a club in one year.

The record of nine is held by Ed Reulbach of the 1908 Cubs whose victims, strangely enough, were the Dodgers.

Hatten pitched a three-hit 4-0 shutout over his 'cousins' yesterday to extend the Dodgers' winning streak to 10 straight, not counting the protested 3-2 "victory" over the St. Louis Cardinals July 20. It is the longest winning streak of the season in the National league.

The win enabled the Dodgers to maintain their seven game lead over the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals who staged one of their customary fast finishes to nip the Boston Braves 6-7. The Braves dropped to nine games behind the Dodgers and one percentage point behind the third place New York Giants who lost to Cincinnati, 5-0.

In the only two American league games, the New York Yankees increased their first place margin over the idle Boston Red Sox to 10 games by defeating the Detroit Tigers 5-1 and the Philadelphia Athletics won over the Chicago White Sox 5-3. Three National league games all were played during the daytime while the American league contests were played at night.

Five Seperate Groups Studying U. S. Aid To Europe Possibilities

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, July 29 — No less than five important government studies are being made to find out:

1. What kind of resources we have, like coal, steel, food, oil and so on.

2. How much of them we can give Europe without hurting ourselves.

President Truman ordered three of the studies. The state department is doing a fourth. And in congress the house is starting a fifth.

All, in one way or another, tie in with Secretary of State Marshall's proposal to help Europe. This was:

We will try to help you on your feet if you try to help yourselves and then tell us exactly what you need.

Europe is working on that now. In the end, congress will have the final say on the help we give.

James Marlow

Mr. Truman will tell congress how much of what he thinks we ought to let Europe have. But congress will do the deciding.

Unless the President can tell congress how much we have in this country, and how much we can spare, he risks a fight which may ruin the program.

Fight Likely Anyway

There'll probably be a congressional fight anyway. But if he's backed up by figures, Mr. Truman will be in a stronger position to argue.

On June 22 he set up three study groups to examine the problems in the second and third paragraphs above.

These groups are:

1. His economic advisory council. This council was created by act of congress in 1946 to keep a constant check on the economic state of the nation.

The three members of the council—Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman, Leon H. Keyserling, vice chairman, and John D. Clark—will have a staff to help them.

2. A committee, headed by Secretary of the Interior Krug, to study this country's resources. The committee is made up of top government officials.

All government departments and agencies connected in any way with resources will help this committee. It expects to make its report by Aug. 10.

3. A special committee of 19 leaders in economics, finance, labor, agriculture and education. It's headed by Secretary of Commerce Harriman.

Non-Partisan Group

Mr. Truman called it a non-partisan group and told it to report on how much we can "safely and wisely plan" to give Europe.

This committee may start making its report around Sept. 10. Besides the knowledge of its own expert members, the committee can call on all the government agencies and experts for help.

The state department committee — called the top policy planning staff — was set up a couple of months ago by Secretary Marshall.

It is headed by George F. Kennan, one of Marshall's key advisers. Right now its job is to check on what Europe may need.

In congress the house, controlled by Republicans, didn't seem content to get its information entirely from Mr. Truman's groups.

So it voted to set up a "select committee on foreign aid" with 19 house members. Its job: To study the problem of foreign aid.

This committee can visit Europe or any place in this country to find out what it wants to know.

The house voted for this committee shortly before it quit last week for the year. It is to report not later than next March 1.

Appointment of the 19 members was left up to Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin Jr. He'll do it shortly.

Ohio Regional Labor Board Chief Resigns

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 29—Martin J. Wagner resigned as regional director of the national labor relations board yesterday, declaring he believed the Taft-Hartley act "unworkable."

NLRB chief here since 1943, Wagner made public his letter of resignation. He said:

"The act in my opinion contains provisions which are not conducive to sound collective bargaining or the promotion of industrial peace. . . . I do not believe it is sound policy to correct abuses by withdrawing protections which history has demonstrated are essential for the development of sound collective bargaining."

Wagner, a native of Newport, Ky., said his resignation, effective not later than Aug. 22, was accepted by the NLRB at Washington.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

I DID not answer Mary directly, but looked at Katharine, standing directly behind her patient.

"Is it all right for her to be out here?" I asked, and Katharine gave me one of her gamin grins.

"It's all right for her to be anywhere she chooses to be," she said. "I warned you there'd be no holding her, once she had that news, so I'm letting her have her head. But, Mary," her voice suddenly had steel in it, "don't carry your high spirits too far, or I'll put you back to bed. I'm warning you."

"I'll be good," Mary promised, and then began to whirl around the room, her arms held stiffly above her head chanting: "Peace! It's wonderful!"

"Come, come Father Divine!" I told her smiling. "Sit down and I'll tell you about Noel."

She whirled into a seat, put her chin in her hands, and looked up at me in the posture of an obedient little schoolgirl.

"Oh, tell me quickly!" she begged.

"I don't think you have much doubt of what I'm going to say," I said, smiling. "I didn't get Noel on the telephone, but his father promised to pass on your invitation and added a comment to the effect that Noel probably would employ something swifter than the 'wings of the wind' to get himself 'down here.'"

Preened Herself

Mary dimpled and preened herself visibly.

"I imagine he won't waste any time," she agreed. "But he does have to dress and shave. I've got to do something to pass the time until he gets here. The way I feel I'd like to go up to the top of the Empire Etate building, wave some assorted flags, and yodel my news to the rarefied atmosphere!

"I say, Auntie Madge," she rattled on, "couldn't you round up an assortment of bellboys and dicks and clerks outside the door, and let me go out and kiss 'em all? I wouldn't tell 'em anything. You could just explain that it was my high spirits—"

"Or a coming hangover," Katharine suggested dryly, and Mary made a face at her.

"I am sure they would be thrilled to tears," I said sedately, but with one apprehensive eye on the door leading to Faith's room. "I'll suggest substitutes, however, Faith and her daddy will be in here in another second or two. Suppose you hug and kiss them, but"—I lowered my voice to a murmur—"be very, very careful what you say before Faith. Just tell her the doctor has told you that you are nearly well, and can go back to your own apartment soon, and she can come to see you there."

"Is that true?" Mary demanded. "Would you trust me with Faith?"

An Old Cliche

In exasperation I gave her an old cliche.

"Don't be an anointed idiot because you know how," I told her. Of course I'd—"

"I think we're going to have a surprise," Katharine said, effectually shutting off my remonstrance with its inevitable utterance of a name.

And then Faith put her head through the door.

"Who's trying to be an anointed idiot?" she demanded, and then forgot her query at the sight of Mary.

"Oh! Oh! Cousin Mary!" she squealed. There was no other word for the sound that came from her lips. "Are you all better again? Do I—do I dare come and hug you?"

Mary sank to her knees and held out her arms.

"If you don't hug me so tightly that I have to yell, I'll spank you!" she declared, and the next instant the delighted child was in her arms, hugging her with such vigor that I was sure Mary's shrieks of protest were not all pretense.

Practiced Hand

"Gently, gently!" Dicky warned, coming up to them, and detaching Faith with a practiced hand. "I want to hug her, too, you know. I'm her uncle, and I really would like to have something to hug besides a bundle of broken bones, and that's what Cousin Mary will be if you keep up that pace."

Faith giggled ecstatically as Dicky transferred her to me and turned back to his beloved niece.

"I think my daddy is the funniest man on earth," she said, and then, with me, she watched her father sweep Mary into his arms and put his face against her hair.

"You darling brat!" he said. "I never can tell you what all this means to me!"

He kissed her tenderly, and then Mary fairly leaped from his arms as the knocker sounded.

"Oh! Oh! Is that Noel?" she caroled.

4-H COMMITTEE NAMED

Plans were discussed for entering a float for the Marion county fair and a committee was named to carry out the project in a meeting of the Waldo Winner 4-H club recently at the school building. On the committee are James Mayes, Barbara Kaelber, Mary Heiby and Fred Thiken. Dr. Walter McClaskey was a guest speaker and gave a talk, "Caring for Your Animal." Games were played and a social hour included refreshments served by Betty Jo Salyer and Mar Heiby.
